Dist. 25 voters approve tax hike

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Voters approved a tax increase by a margin of nearly 2-1 Saturday in Arlington Heights Dist. 25.

The referendum, increasing taxes by 52 cents per $100 in equalized assessed valuation, passed in each of the 14 voting precincts with 6,174 voters going to the polls. The increase brings the district education fund tax rate to the legal maximum. It will mean an extra $55 per year on the average home owner's tax bill and an extra $1.1 million annually in district revenue beginning with the 1977-78 school year.

Passage of the referendum "shows that there are many residents who regard education as a high priority item" said Dist. 25 Board Pres. Joan Klussmann. "They understood the bleak financial picture that we face."

THE DISTRICT'S financial dilemma hinges on a declining enrollment that is expected to drop 31 per cent by 1984. The loss of state aid because of the loss of students, plus inflation and cuts in estate funding, meant a deficit in excess of $3 million by that year.

The board of education already has cut $900,000 from next year's budget, including closing of North School, reduction of 43 classroom teachers with a proportionate increase in class size and more cuts in staff, student services and programs.

Despite those cuts, the district was left with a deficit. The board of education believed a tax increase was needed to postpone further cuts it believed would seriously damage the education program.

THE CUTS ALREADY made for next year will remain, Supt. Donald Strong said. Schools will continue to be closed in the future as enrollment declines and some cuts may still have to be made, but "hopefully we won't have to do the kind of drastic cutting" that was done this year, he said.

Strong said he believes the referendum passed "because voters understood the issues and felt it was the best thing to do. It was an informed vote."

When the board began to search for solutions to the financial problem last fall, a series of public meetings was held to explain the situation to residents and ask for their opinions. The community's involvement at the outset led to a victory at the polls, said Mrs. Klussmann, as did the "intensity of work" of supporters in explaining to the public the need for the tax increase.

Pickets protest abortion policy

by DAVE IBATA

Nearly 300 pickets marched in front of Northwest Community Hospital, 800 W. Central Rd., Arlington Heights, Sunday afternoon, protesting the hospital's recent decision to allow abortions.

The Mother's Day protesters criticized the hospital board's surprise decision, which they said passed by one vote when many board members were absent.

"I think we all saw it in Nazi Germany," said Ernest Schmidt, legislative assistant for State Rep. Jack Williams, D-5th. "You've got to start somewhere. The second step is mercy killing, and God only knows what the third step is."

WHILE HOSPITAL officials declined to meet with protestors Sunday, they agreed to a mid-week meeting with three representatives of antiabortion groups. The "pro-lifers" hope to have the hospital reverse its decision.

Anti-abortion groups have threatened to launch a boycott against the hospital and doctors who perform abortions.

Family tortured then shot to death: police

The inside story

by DAVE IBATA

Police believe killers of an Elk Grove Village couple and their son broke into the home unnoticed late Tuesday night, tortured the family, then shot each of the three victims pointblank in the head.

Deputy Police Chief William Kohnke said Sunday the killers used a pair of scissors, a trophy and possibly a knife to torture Frank Columbo, 43; his wife Mary, 40 and their son Michael, 13. The family members were then each shot in the head with a .38 caliber revolver.

Although the murderers reportedly took some valuables, Kohnke said a hidden cache of money was overlooked and police now suspect robbery as a motive in the killings.

KOHNKE SAID the killers apparently picked a lock to enter through a side door of the Columbo home, 55 Brantwood Dr., between 10:30 and 11:30 p.m. Tuesday.

There were at least three and possibly four killers Kohnke said, because of evidence, including overturned furniture, at the home which indicated the family members struggled with their killers before their deaths.

Police found the father Friday dead in the living room of the tri-level house. He wore only trousers and a pair of socks, and Kohnke said he likely was getting ready for bed at the time of the slayings.

Mrs. Columbo, attired in night clothes, was found dead in the upstairs hallway, Kohnke said.

Michael died in his upstairs bedroom; he too was in night clothes, police said.

KOHNKE SAID the Columbo couple apparently heard noises downstairs. When the father went to investigate he was overpowered by the killers, stabbed, bludgeoned, then shot to death. Mrs. Columbo was then raped and murdered.

Police said the victims were repeatedly stabbed, one between 40 and 50 times.

Although most neighbors told police they hard nothing, one said Friday that she heard a sound like a firecracker sometime after 10 p.m. Tuesday.

The killers then fled in the two family cars. Chicago police found one abandoned on the city's near west side and traced it to the Columbos. When police went to the Columbo home Friday afternoon, they discovered the bodies.

WOOD DALE POLICE Sunday morning found the second stolen car abandoned at Ill. Rte. 83 and Spruce Road. Kohnke said. The car reportedly had been abandoned Saturday.

"We're not ruling out the possibility" of a gangland slaying, Kohnke said. However, he said professional "hit men" would not kill in a home, rape one of the victims or kill an entire family.

The Columbo's 21-year-old daughter, Patricia, was living with a friend in Addison when the killings occurred, police said.

Students' work reflects beauty of teacher Kay Loubet

The art was pure and beautiful. It was graceful and art was never wrong.

No matter what you created with clay or crayons or papier machie, no matter what you thought you had not created, Kay Loubet always said it was beautiful art.

But then she'd offer a suggestion. And somehow, your artwork always turned out better. Very often, you came away thinking the suggestion was your own.

That is what Kay Loubet did best during the 25 years she taught art to thousands of eager youngsters in the Arlington Heights public school systems.

She convinced them they were always right. All art was good. You could not make art wrong. You could only make art your own way.

Dee Staahl graduated from college two years ago and now works for a publishing house. She learned art from Kay Loubet.

Kay Loubet

"KAY WAS INCREDIBLE at getting kids to see big," said Dee. "She always had everybody do something. Every bulb on the Christmas tree belonged to the kid who made it.

"She was always one step ahead of the kids. It was really kind of neat."

Lu Staahl, Dee's mother, taught alongside Kay for many years. A great friend was taken from them the day, less than two years ago, when cancer finally killed Kay Loubet.

But she is not being forgotten, this woman with the hearty laugh, who had an approach to teaching which made youngsters want to learn, and who loved kids so very much.

Throughout this month, the Kay Campbell Loubet Art Exhibit is being displayed in the Arlington Heights Memorial Library. It's all her best.

THE EXHIBIT is one of beautifully simplistic ideas. That is how Kay worked. She always said keep it simple. Make it easy for the children. Don't criticize; encourage.

This evening, beginning at 7 o'clock, there will be a special tea in Kay's honor at the library. Many of her best friends surely will gather to honor Kay tonight.

Mac Loubet and Denis, Kay's husband and son, would be proud. They are in Texas, where the family moved four years ago. Kay died there in the fall of 1974.

Today

Lu and Dee Staahl remember their friend. She was a warm and caring person who had a very free spirit.

Above all, Kay Loubet was a superb teacher.

"You know how kids with a piece of chalk will overdo it," Lu said. "Kay would say something about, 'That's beautiful, but let's step back and look at it.'

"She'd say, 'Look at that. Doesn't that look like a rabbit?' " Lu said. "The kid would squint his eyes and say, 'Oh, yeah, look at the rabbit.'

"THERE WAS NO RABBIT," said Lu. "But the kid would go back to outline it, and pretty soon there'd be a rabbit."

Kay could do anything with art. Blobs of clay became cones of clay and then, suddenly, the cones had turned into Santa Claus.

She never lectured kids nor found it necessary to scream at them. Kay always said children are creative human beings, and the things they can do are only limited by restrictions from adults.

"A lot of artists get hung up on their ego," said Lu. "That wasn't her at all. It was something different, something creative."

Kay made children feel like they had some real talent. She was best with the outcasts, the loners.

"She sensed their sympathies," said Florence Sorokin, who taught alongside Kay beginning in 1949 at North School. "She was able to let them free themselves to try all kinds of art."

Cancer began spreading three years before she died. She would have been almost 60 years old this year. Mac, Kay and their only son, Denis, moved to Texas in 1972.

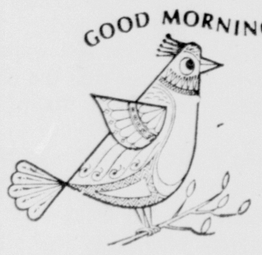

Only a few friends saw her later. She wrote often. Lu Staahl visited and exchanged many letters with Kay.

"She told me there were nights when she'd cry . . . and she was writing this . . . but she could make no sound," said Lu. Kay's voicebox had been removed.

"I don't ever remember she felt ry for herself," said Lu. "She was just damn mad this had to happen and interfere with everything she had planned."

Her friends only remember Kay one way, very vibrant. She was always giving and caring.

"It's interesting that nobody can really remember when Kay died," said Lu. "They only remember when she lived."

Move westward brought hardship for Indiana family

Backward Glance

For her glimpse of her grandparents' life on the Kansas prairies, Marie Williams of Arlington Heights wins this week's $5 award.

In 1851, my grandfather, William Brooks, finalized the sale of his small hotel and home near Terre Haute, Ind., and started preparations to move his family to Kansas. Although Bill had a successful business, the move was made necessary because he was suffering from chronic asthma. The doctor told him to leave the Wabash Valley for a dryer climate.

His wife, Mary, their three small children and what possessions they could handle were loaded into a covered wagon drawn by oxen for the long journey west.

Bill had purchased, sight unseen, cleared land that already had a house on it. Mary must have been heartbroken when they arrived. The buildings were "soddies," constructed of sod and mud — quite a change from the large frame house she had left in Indiana.

THE LONELINESS of the Kansas prairie was intensified by the distance between neighbors. It took several hours to ride to the next farm.

But the Brooks family did have visitors — Indians. And they came all too often for Mary's liking. Although they never harmed the family, they appeared very suddenly, sometimes looking for food. But most of the time they simply stayed beyond the plowed field and watched in silence. Whenever Mary saw an Indian, she hid the children before venturing outside to see what he ws up to.

Weth the onset of the winter months, see what he was up to.

With the onset of the winter months, the family suffered from the cold and food was in short supply. The burden of caring for the livestock and doing the chores fell more and more on Mary as Bill's health failed. In early spring, he passed away.

MARY DARED NOT dig a grave. That would be a clear sign to the ever-watching Indians that she was alone. With no one to turn to for help, she wrapped her husband's body in oilskin and hid it under the bed.

She waited. Five days she waited, barricaded in the house with the children, fearing the Indians would attack.

When help finally arrived, she buried her husband, gathered up their belongings and took the children to a neighbor's farm where they took shelter in a lean-to for weeks until arrangements could be made for them to return to Indiana.

Mary later married Wesley Damm, a blacksmith and carriage builder, and they had 13 children. She lived out her 82 years in Indiana.

And she never liked Indians.

Audience to a community tragedy

by DAVE IBATA

Circuses and homicides generally draw crowds. During the weekend it was at the expense of Frank, Mary and young Michael Columbo.

Gawkers jammed Brantwood Drive Saturday, the day after police discovered the brutal-torture murder of an Elk Grove Village family.

Sightseers still came to gawk Sunday in late-model cars; kids hung out the windows, pointing and chirping as they slowly rode past the Columbo house, at 55 Brantwood Dr., "There it is!"

For outsiders Sunday was a holiday. For neighbors, a nightmare.

"My children and I couldn't sleep at all that (Friday) night," said Bernadette Meyart, 58 Brantwood. "here we are living right across from the Columbos, and we didn't hear anything (when they were murdered).

"I just hope the police will find the murderers and punish them real good — not the way they do now," she said.

NEIGHBORS AGREE the Columbos were a quiet, respectable, typically suburban family: A well-kept home that the family had finished remodeling just two months before the killings; two cars in the garage; a daughter living away from home and a 13-year-old son who lived to ride trail bikes.

Georgia Brooks, 65 Brantwood, was a close friend of the Columbos. Her family, the Columbos and most of their neighbors moved into the neighborhood shortly after its development 11 years ago.

Village Mgr. Charles A. Willis, 64 Kendall, also knew the Columbos. His yard abuts theirs.

"What can I say? Some maniacs went into the house and brutally killed innocent people," he said. Because of his job, he rarely saw the family, Willis said. "Like most of the neighbors, I hardly knew they were around."

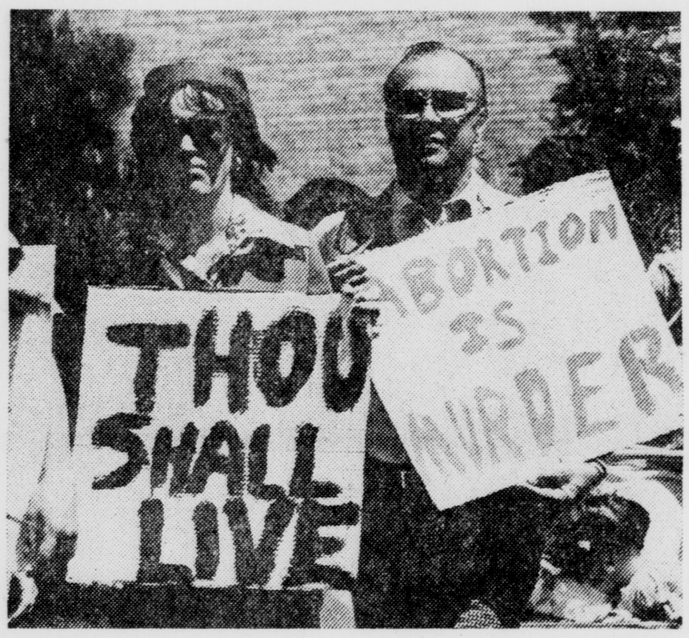

Mrs. Brooks said of the father, "He and that boy — you never saw one hardly ever without seeing the other. He was like the typical suburban father — baseball and all that."

Neighbors last saw the father and son playing catch in their front yard Tuesday evening.

Dist. 25 vote wins; parks vote nixed

Voters in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 approved a tax increase referendum Saturday, while Buffalo Grove Park District residents rejected all five parts of a bond issue referendum. Taxpayers in Dist. 25 now will pay an additional 52 cents per $100 assessed valuation — about $55 in additional taxes per year for the average homeowner. The referendum carried in each of the district's 14 voting precincts with 3,992 yes votes and 2,185 no votes. In Buffalo Grove, the final tally was 5,934 no votes and 1,607 yes votes. Park district officials were seeking a tax increase of $20.50 on a home assessed at $10,000 to finance a $1.1 million bond issue for park site purchases and development. Each of the district's six voting precincts rejected all five parts of the referendum.

NEARLY THREE HUNDRED picketers marched Sunday at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, to protest the hospital's recent decision permitting abortions.

THOUGHTS ON A MATTRESS
Poem: Back-ache Blues*

Once upon a midnight sleeping,
Suddenly I woke up weeping.
Something happened in my mattress
To disturb my night's repose.
While I rested nearly napping,
Suddenly there came a snapping
As the springs unleashed their zapping
Every time I tried to doze.

Why is this mattress getting bumpy?
Why the surface worn and lumpy?
Could it be because I've used it
Every night for twenty years?
Maybe I should buy a new one
To replace this ancient ruin.
Could the Schaumburg Mattress Factory
Drive away my back-ache tears?

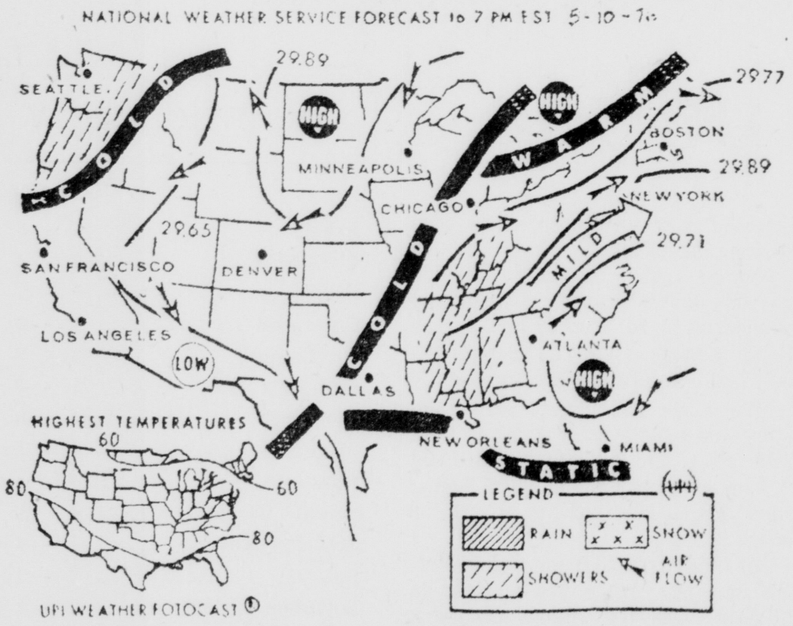

Morning found me weak and worried.
To the Factory I hurried.
Bought a mattress and a box spring
To relieve my back-ache blues.
Now I sleep with blissful ease,
No more back-ache memories.
Now I know why Schaumburg Mattress
Well deserves its rave reviews.

Move westward brought hardship for Indiana family

Backward Glance

For her glimpse of her grandparents' life on the Kansas prairies, Marie Williams of Arlington Heights wins this week's $5 award.

In 1851, my grandfather, William Brooks, finalized the sale of his small hotel and home near Terre Haute, Ind., and started preparations to move his family to Kansas. Although Bill had a successful business, the move was made necessary because he was suffering from chronic asthma. The doctor told him to leave the Wabash Valley for a dryer climate.

His wife, Mary, their three small children and what possessions they could handle were loaded into a covered wagon drawn by oxen for the long journey west.

Bill had purchased, sight unseen, cleared land that already had a house on it. Mary must have been heartbroken when they arrived. The buildings were "soddies," constructed of sod and mud — quite a change from the large frame house she had left in Indiana.

THE LONELINESS of the Kansas prairie was intensified by the distance between neighbors. It took several hours to ride to the next farm.

But the Brooks family did have visitors — Indians. And they came all too often for Mary's liking. Although they never harmed the family, they appeared very suddenly, sometimes looking for food. But most of the time they simply stayed beyond the plowed field and watched in silence. Whenever Mary saw an Indian, she hid the children before venturing outside to see what he ws up to.

Weth the onset of the winter months, see what he was up to.

With the onset of the winter months, the family suffered from the cold and food was in short supply. The burden of caring for the livestock and doing the chores fell more and more on Mary as Bill's health failed. In early spring, he passed away.

MARY DARED NOT dig a grave. That would be a clear sign to the ever-watching Indians that she was alone. With no one to turn to for help, she wrapped her husband's body in oilskin and hid it under the bed.

She waited. Five days she waited, barricaded in the house with the children, fearing the Indians would attack.

When help finally arrived, she buried her husband, gathered up their belongings and took the children to a neighbor's farm where they took shelter in a lean-to for weeks until arrangements could be made for them to return to Indiana.

Mary later married Wesley Damm, a blacksmith and carriage builder, and they had 13 children. She lived out her 82 years in Indiana.

And she never liked Indians.

Audience to a community tragedy

by DAVE IBATA

Circuses and homicides generally draw crowds. During the weekend it was at the expense of Frank, Mary and young Michael Columbo.

Gawkers jammed Brantwood Drive Saturday, the day after police discovered the brutal-torture murder of an Elk Grove Village family.

Sightseers still came to gawk Sunday in late-model cars; kids hung out the windows, pointing and chirping as they slowly rode past the Columbo house, at 55 Brantwood Dr., "There it is!"

For outsiders Sunday was a holiday. For neighbors, a nightmare.

"My children and I couldn't sleep at all that (Friday) night," said Bernadette Meyart, 58 Brantwood. "here we are living right across from the Columbos, and we didn't hear anything (when they were murdered).

"I just hope the police will find the murderers and punish them real good — not the way they do now," she said.

NEIGHBORS AGREE the Columbos were a quiet, respectable, typically suburban family: A well-kept home that the family had finished remodeling just two months before the killings; two cars in the garage; a daughter living away from home and a 13-year-old son who lived to ride trail bikes.

Georgia Brooks, 65 Brantwood, was a close friend of the Columbos. Her family, the Columbos and most of their neighbors moved into the neighborhood shortly after its development 11 years ago.

Village Mgr. Charles A. Willis, 64 Kendall, also knew the Columbos. His yard abuts theirs.

"What can I say? Some maniacs went into the house and brutally killed innocent people," he said. Because of his job, he rarely saw the family, Willis said. "Like most of the neighbors, I hardly knew they were around."

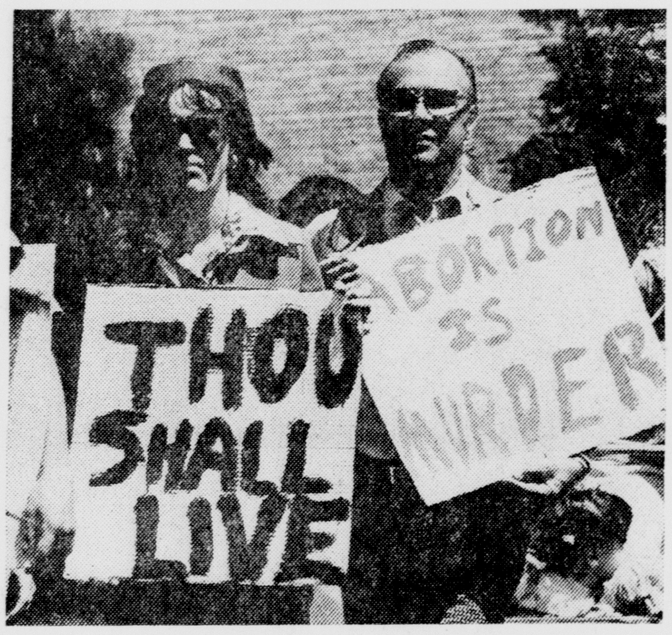

Mrs. Brooks said of the father, "He and that boy — you never saw one hardly ever without seeing the other. He was like the typical suburban father — baseball and all that."

Neighbors last saw the father and son playing catch in their front yard Tuesday evening.

Dist. 25 vote wins; parks vote nixed

Voters in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 approved a tax increase referendum Saturday, while Buffalo Grove Park District residents rejected all five parts of a bond issue referendum. Taxpayers in Dist. 25 now will pay an additional 52 cents per $100 assessed valuation — about $55 in additional taxes per year for the average homeowner. The referendum carried in each of the district's 14 voting precincts with 3,992 yes votes and 2,185 no votes. In Buffalo Grove, the final tally was 5,934 no votes and 1,607 yes votes. Park district officials were seeking a tax increase of $20.50 on a home assessed at $10,000 to finance a $1.1 million bond issue for park site purchases and development. Each of the district's six voting precincts rejected all five parts of the referendum.

NEARLY THREE HUNDRED picketers marched Sunday at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, to protest the hospital's recent decision permitting abortions.

THOUGHTS ON A MATTRESS

Poem: Back-ache Blues*

Once upon a midnight sleeping,
Suddenly I woke up weeping
Something happened in my mattress
To disturb my night's repose.
While I rested nearly napping,
Suddenly there came a snapping
As the springs unleashed their zapping
Every time I tried to doze.
Why is this mattress getting bumpy?
Why the surface worn and lumpy?
Could it be because I've used it
Every night for twenty years?
Maybe I should buy a new one
To replace this ancient ruin.
Could the Schaumburg Mattress Factory
Drive away my back-ache tears?
Morning found me weak and worried.
To the Factory I hurried.
Bought a mattress and a box spring
To relieve my back-ache blues.
Now I sleep with blissful ease.
No more back-ache memories.
Now I know why Schaumburg Mattress
Well deserves its rave reviews.

Italy again jolted by strong earthquake

Funeral ceremony is held at Mariano Cemetery for victims of earthquake.

UDINE, Italy (UPI) — Another strong earthquake shook Northeastern Italy Sunday, sending thousands of panicky people running into the streets in their nightclothes. The jolt caused more damage, but no new casualties were reported.

Rescue workers skipped religious ceremonies in their haste to bury the victims of the first, massive quake two days earlier. The death toll stood at 781, and authorities said it would pass 1,000 since many destroyed homes have not yet been searched.

In Gemona — one of the towns most severely damaged — three women trapped in wreckage for 51 hours were rescued Sunday.

Rescue workers said they feared ruins in neighborhoods of Gemona which have not yet been reached by search parties might hold hundreds more victims of the earthquake.

In Rome, Pope Paul VI appealed for assistance for survivors. The interior ministry estimated 110,000 Italians lost their homes in the shock.

Relief supplies streamed into the disaster area aboard convoys of trucks.

Speaking in a solemn voice to about 40,000 people in St. Peter's Square for his noon blessing, the Pope said, "It is our own who are crying and we are crying with them.

"Our heart is like a seismograph in which reverberates all the vibrations of human passion," the Pope said.

"This tragic calamity must not make us forget others in the world, such as Lebanon and Guatemala, that also require our compassion and help. But this tragedy . . . is even closer to us and therefore more sensitive."

The latest tremor, the most severe of 43 aftershocks, lasted five seconds and completed the demolition of many damaged structures in Italy and neighboring Yugoslavia. An audible rumble from underground preceded the shock in Udine, awakening residents and causing a near panic in the city jail.

The shock Sunday registered 5.7 on the open-ended Richter scale at 1:53 a.m. The earthquake that devastated 24 Friuli region towns Thursday night lasted 50 seconds; with an intensity of 6.9.

Survivors in the stricken area adjoining the Austrian and Yugoslav frontiers buried their dead in long parallel trenches without any religious ceremonies.

"We're having no Mass today," a rescue working wearing a yellow surcal mask said in Artegna. "Today we work."

Officials said 2,200 persons were known injured. Doctors concerned about the possibility of epidemics said there was no immediate danger of infection, but they began a mass vaccination campaign against typhoid.

Sunday's tremor was most intense in the Padua-Rovigo area, and it awoke people in Nrthwest Yugoslavia. "It was not all that bad, but the people in that area were scared because they're not used to this sort of thing," Udine Police Chief Mario Festa said.

Officials said the 180 prisoners in Udine's low, white-walled jail poured from their cells into the prison yard when the tremor struck. Police fired about half a dozen shots in the air to keep them from scaling the walls. They later returned inside.

Many of Udine's 100,000 residents have been camping outdoors since Thursday. Those still in their homes dashed into the relative safety of squares and open spaces.

A warm rain fell Sunday over much of the fan-shaped disaster area northwest of Udine. Health officials welcomed it as a deterrent to possible epidemics that could be spawned by hot, summerlike temperatures in the ruined towns. But it also posed the threat of dislodging rubble onto searchers.

Long convoys of trucks ferried in supplies and relief equipment and authorities asked all nonessential traffic to keep off the network of small access roads. No looting was reported.

Senate staff reports:

FBI continues 'bugging' Americans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI has been tapping telephones and bugging Americans in noncriminal cases for 40 years, and it continues to use these and more sophisticated techniques despite increased legal restrictions, a Senate staff report said Sunday.

The most private conversations of American citizens have been vulnerable to monitoring by government agents without warrants in violation of constitutional rights, the report said.

Electronic methods range from conventional wire taps to microphones secretly planted in private locations or on "mobile informants;" so-called "spike mikes" which can be inserted into the wall of an adjoining room; and parabolic microphones, directed at "targets" in train stations or on streets and effective over long distances.

A telephone can be turned into a "miketel" capable of intercepting a conversation within hearing range — with or without the phone in use.

"Even more sophisticated technology permits the government to intercept any telephone, telegram or telex communication which is transmitted at least partially through the air — as most such communications now are," the report said.

Similar methods are used by the National Security Agency and the CIA, which, according to past disclosures, even devised a "bugged" toothbrush. But the staff intelligence report concentrated on the FBI.

Techniques "have understandably enabled these agencies to obtain valuable information relevant to their legitimate intelligence missions," the report said.

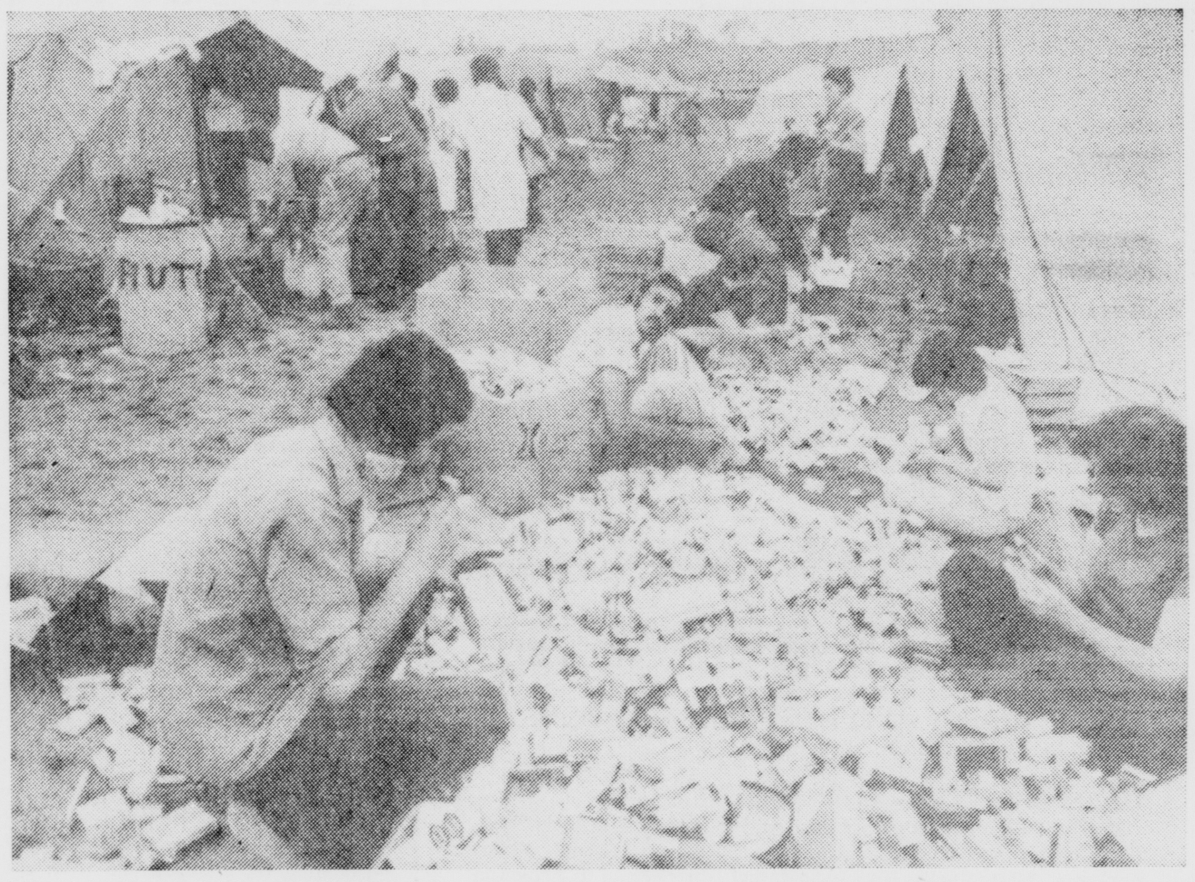

But by its very nature, electronic surveillance allows the collection of "vast amounts of information unrelated to any legitimate governmental interest about large numbers of American citizens."

Telephone taps and other surveillance have been approved and sometimes ordered by presidents back to Franklin D. Roosevelt and attorneys general back to William D. Mitchell in 1931 during the Hoover administration.

Court decisions narrowed the field for authorized electronic surveillance. But hundreds of operations were conducted without judicial approval or Justice Department knowledge, and gaps exist for domestic interceptions on broad grounds of "national security," the report said.

"The very intrusiveness of these techniques implies the need for strict controls on their use, and the Fourth Amendment protection against unreasonable searches and seizures demands no less," it said.

"Without such controls, they may be directed against entirely innocent American citizens and the government may use the vast range of information exposed by electronic means for partisan political and other improper purposes."

Iranian 747 crashes in Spain, 17 die

An Iranian air force Boeing 747 cargo jet flying to Madrid crashed Sunday near the town of Huete, police said. A spokesman at Huete, 63 miles east of Madrid, said all 17 members of the crew were killed. The crash occurred around 5 p.m. in windy, rainy weather. Members of the Huete garrison of the paramilitary police force found that all persons aboard the plane had died. Iran bought a dozen 747s from Trans World Airlines and Continental Airlines last year and converted the passenger planes to freight carriers.

Israel reaches West Bank compromise

The Israeli cabinet adopted a compromise decision Sunday on the volatile issue of Jewish settlement in the West Bank of Jordan, voting down a leftist proposal to remove Jewish squatters forcibly from the Arab area. Ministers emerging from the 9% hour session said the settlers from the Gush Emunim (Band of Believers) movement will be offered a new site. The 20-member cabinet rejected a leftist proposal to use force to remove the 30 Jewish families now living at the Kadum army base near Nablus.

Soviet Union cites defense strength

The Soviet Union's defense leaders said Sunday their country is stronger than ever before and could defeat aggression "on land, in the air and at sea" despite growing military might in the Western alliance. In an "order of the day" marking the 31st anniversary of the Soviet victory over Nazi Germany, the new defense minister, Gen. Dmitry F. Ustinov, said: "The international position of the Soviet Union has become strong as never before." But he added the armed forces "persistently polish their military skill" in order to defend Communist gains and "give a crushing rebuff to any aggressor."

San Francisco celebrates end of strike

Champagne-carrying passengers hopped on cable cars in San Francisco Sunday to celebrate the end of a city workers strike which shut down mass transit and building services for 39 days. City officials said a tough stand against the walkout helped avoid a financial crisis. There were also signs of an agreement in a strike-lockout at NBC, where technicians and newswriters have been off the job for five weeks. It was the nation's first good labor news in weeks.

Other major strikes still idled more than 100,000 workers. Negotiators for 70,000 striking rubber workers and the nation's "big four" rubber manufactuers planned to meet Monday in an effort to settle a 20-day-old strike which has begun to cause hardships in the auto industry. In New York, the garbage piled up outside 4,000 apartment buildings hit by a week-long walkout by 22,000 building workers. About 14,000 Teamsters remained on strike against the United Parcel Service in the Midwest and a lengthy beer bottlers strike against Anheuser Busch idled 8,000 workers.

New Lebanon president denounced

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Heavy fighting broke out Sunday between Christian forces and Moslem leftists who called for the rejection of Lebanon's new president, Elias Sarkis.

Political circles were unanimous in predicting Sarkis' election would fail to bring peace to Lebanon, torn apart by 13 months of civil war, unless the president reached an understandng with socialist Kamal Jumblatt, leader of an alliance of leftist groups.

Jumblatt, who led the attack against the parliament vote Saturday but failed to stop the election, gave no hint of his plans. Mortar and machine-gun attacks failed to deter parliament deputies who elected Sarkis in a 66-0 vote.

The leftist radio station reported heavy fighting in the Mt. Lebanon region and said right-wing forces tried to advance on four fronts but were repulsed with heavy casualties.

"The corpses of more than 100 isolationists still lie on the battlefield, while the martyrs of the nationalist movement and the Palestinian Revolution number 16," the radio said.

There was no comment from right-wing spokesmen.

Palestinian guerrillas gave full support to the leftists and said the Christians used tanks and artillery in attacking mountain areas around the town of Aintoura.

Earlier shooting incidents around Beirut following the election killed 70 persons and wounded more than 120. Fighting in Beirut died down Sunday, however.

The leftists called for rejection of Sarkis, whose election they attributed to "foreign military and political pressure." Syria, the architect of Lebanon's peace plan, was the target of the leftists' anger.

Sarkis had the support of rightists and Syria in the election and was expected to take office when President Suleiman Franjieh resigns within a week — a key point in Syria's peace initiative.

In Beirut, there was little sign of the Syrian-backed Palestine Liberation Army or the guerrillas of the Palestinian Saiqa organization, who have been responsible for any security in the western Moslem sector of Beirut.

Saiqa forces clashed with leftists Saturday night in shootouts that left more than a dozen persons dead and wounded on both sides.

In South Lebanon, a strike shut down the city of Sidon for the second successive day.

Report Isabel Peron plays cards, enjoys good health

• Maria Estela (Isabel) Peron, the ex-president of Argentina now held under house arrest, is in good health and spends most of her time playing cards, the Brazilian newspaper O Globo said Sunday. Not citing specific sources, the paper said Mrs. Peron was suffering from nervous depression when brought to the government-owned holiday mansion during last March's coup and lost weight. But she soon recovered and is now enjoying good health and eating regularly.

• Betty Ford received cards from her children and celebrated Mother's Day with the President at the White House. Sheila Weidenfeld, her press secretary, said the Ford family enjoyed a roast beef dinner Sunday evening. Mrs. Ford plans to campaign for the President in Michigan later this week.

• Coleman Smith was elected police judge of Milan, Mo. last month but apparently few were aware of his platform. "I told the people I wasn't going to enforce the laws and I'm going to keep that promise," Smith said. To that end, Smith failed to show up at his swearing-in ceremony, missed one court session but attended another — where he made the policemen stand at attention and berated one officer to the point that slander charges are being considered — and dismissed all cases pending before the city court.

Unwilling pair could win Nebraska

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — President Ford and Jimmy Carter are front-runners in Nebraska's all-star presidential primary Tuesday, but the Democratic odds could be upset by two unwilling entries — Hubert Humphrey and Edward Kennedy.

There are those, including three-term former Democratic Gov. Frank Morrison, who believe Humphrey and Kennedy could finish one-two in Nebraska, despite their insistence that they are not candidates.

Another new but not at all reluctant entry in Nebraska is Idaho Sen. Frank Church, taking his first dip in the 1976 primary pool to seek the state's 23 Democratic convention delegates.

If Humphrey, Kennedy and Church confuse the Democratic reckoning, late readings also indicated Ronald Reagan was making a strong run among traditionally conservative Nebraska Republicans against Ford's early lead for the 25 GOP delegates.

Reagan's Nebraska candidacy got a considerable boost from his Texas primary sweep.

Humphrey and Kennedy are on the Nebraska ballot against their will. Nebraska law says if a person is regarded as a potential presidential aspirant or is listed on the primary ballot of any other state, the Nebraska ballot will carry the name.

When Oregon put Humphrey and Kennedy on its ballot, they automatically became part of the Nebraska listings along with Carter, Morris Udall, and George Wallace — the active survivors of the Democratic primary wars — plus all the dropouts ranging from Henry Jackson to Sargent Shriver.

Church chose Nebraska as the first primary of his late-starting campaign and has spent more time — plus an estimated $100,000 — in the state than any other candidate.

His strategy is to look good here in hopes of building momentum for victory in the western primaries leading to California June 8.

Nebraska polls early last week showed Ford leading Reagan with 54-35 with 11 per cent undecided. Carter topped the field of 11 Democrats with 27 per cent. Humphrey finished second to Carter with 20 per cent.

However, the polls failed to reflect Humphrey's decision not to enter the primary field and Jackson's to pull out of active campaigning.

Jackson, who never campaigned in Nebraska but had strong labor support and was endorsed by Gov. J. James Exon, had a 5 per cent standing in the polls along with Wallace. The polls showed Kennedy with 8 to 15 per cent support.

Church jumped from near zero name recognition to about 15 per cent since his intensive campaign began about one month ago.

The leftists called for rejection of Sarkis, whose election they attributed to "foreign military and political pressure." Syria, the architect of Lebanon's peace plan, was the target of the leftists' anger.

Sarkis had the support of rightists and Syria in the election and was expected to take office when President Suleiman Franjieh resigns within a week — a key point in Syria's peace initiative.

In Beirut, there was little sign of the Syrian-backed Palestine Liberation Army or the guerrillas of the Palestinian Saiqa organization, who have been responsible for any security in the western Moslem sector of Beirut.

Saiqa forces clashed with leftists Saturday night in shootouts that left more than a dozen persons dead and wounded on both sides.

In South Lebanon, a strike shut down the city of Sidon for the second successive day.

Report Isabel Peron plays cards, enjoys good health

• Maria Estela (Isabel) Peron, the ex-president of Argentina now held under house arrest, is in good health and spends most of her time playing cards, the Brazilian newspaper O Globo said Sunday. Not citing specific sources, the paper said Mrs. Peron was suffering from nervous depression when brought to the government-owned holiday mansion during last March's coup and lost weight. But she soon recovered and is now enjoying good health and eating regularly.

• Betty Ford received cards from her children and celebrated Mother's Day with the President at the White House. Sheila Weidenfeld, her press secretary, said the Ford family enjoyed a roast beef dinner Sunday evening. Mrs. Ford plans to campaign for the President in Michigan later this week.

• Coleman Smith was elected police judge of Milan, Mo. last month but apparently few were aware of his platform. "I told the people I wasn't going to enforce the laws and I'm going to keep that promise," Smith said. To that end, Smith failed to show up at his swearing-in ceremony, missed one court session but attended another — where he made the policemen stand at attention and berated one officer to the point that slander charges are being considered — and dismissed all cases pending before the city court.

Unwilling pair could win Nebraska

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — President Ford and Jimmy Carter are front-runners in Nebraska's all-star presidential primary Tuesday, but the Democratic odds could be upset by two unwilling entries — Hubert Humphrey and Edward Kennedy.

There are those, including three-term former Democratic Gov. Frank Morrison, who believe Humphrey and Kennedy could finish one-two in Nebraska, despite their insistence that they are not candidates.

Another new but not at all reluctant entry in Nebraska is Idaho Sen. Frank Church, taking his first dip in the 1976 primary pool to seek the state's 23 Democratic convention delegates.

If Humphrey, Kennedy and Church confuse the Democratic reckoning, late readings also indicated Ronald Reagan was making a strong run among traditionally conservative Nebraska Republicans against Ford's early lead for the 25 GOP delegates.

Reagan's Nebraska candidacy got a considerable boost from his Texas primary sweep.

Humphrey and Kennedy are on the Nebraska ballot against their will. Nebraska law says if a person is regarded as a potential presidential aspirant or is listed on the primary ballot of any other state, the Nebraska ballot will carry the name.

When Oregon put Humphrey and Kennedy on its ballot, they automatically became part of the Nebraska listings along with Carter, Morris Udall, and George Wallace — the active survivors of the Democratic primary wars — plus all the dropouts ranging from Henry Jackson to Sargent Shriver.

Church chose Nebraska as the first primary of his late-starting campaign and has spent more time — plus an estimated $100,000 — in the state than any other candidate.

His strategy is to look good here in hopes of building momentum for victory in the western primaries leading to California June 8.

Nebraska polls early last week showed Ford leading Reagan with 54-35 with 11 per cent undecided. Carter topped the field of 11 Democrats with 27 per cent. Humphrey finished second to Carter with 20 per cent.

However, the polls failed to reflect Humphrey's decision not to enter the primary field and Jackson's to pull out of active campaigning.

Jackson, who never campaigned in Nebraska but had strong labor support and was endorsed by Gov. J. James Exon, had a 5 per cent standing in the polls along with Wallace. The polls showed Kennedy with 8 to 15 per cent support.

Church jumped from near zero name recognition to about 15 per cent since his intensive campaign began about one month ago.

Marriott in Lincolnshire

Resort does better than expected

by TIM MORAN

What do 66,000 people passing through southern Lake County in the past year have in common? They all stayed at the Marriott Lincolnshire resort.

Lee Pillsbury, director of marketing for the Marriott, says the first year of operation of the Lincolnshire resort was beyond the company's expectation in all but a few categories.

Since opening April 2 of 1976, the day of an unseasonable snowstorm, the resort, near the intersection of Milwaukee Avenue and Ill. Rte. 22, has been 10 per cent ahead of projected volume, Pillsbury said.

"WE OPENED IN a bad time for public confidence, and it affected us for the first few months, but we noticed a turnaround in July and August, and it has been surprisingly strong this spring.

"We have been virtually sold out every weekend in January, February and March. We really didn't expect it," Pillsbury said.

The resort includes a golf course, an indoor tennis facility, swimming, a ski slope, the Drury Lane North theater, sailboating, canoeing and paddleboating on a man-made lake. An ice rink, exercise rooms, saunas and game rooms are also included in the resort.

"WE WERE violently opposed by mother nature," Pillsbury said of the ski hill. "We had anticipated 110 days of use on the ski hill, and we ended up with 45. The traditional January thaw came the first week in February, and it never got cold again."

The warm weather even caused some problem with the ice rink. The rink can maintain ice at temperatures up to 45 degrees, and that became a problem in the February thaw, Pillsbury said.

The theater attendance has been sporadic, Pillsbury said. "The Drury has its up and downs. Different plays do better than others. We are now getting better at choosing the kind of plays and stars that people in the area want to see."

Current, well-known stars are sought, and plays that can "take advantage of the star's flexibility," Pillsbury said.

THE AVERAGE STAY of those 66,000 people was 2½ nights, Pillsbury said. The resort also has drawn many business meetings that previously were held at hotels near O'Hare Airport.

The golf course and tennis club are open to nonguests, and have been very successful, Pillsbury said.

Food and beverage sales at the Marriott's three restaurants and three cocktail lounges totaled $6 million for the year, higher than expected, Pillsbury said.

"We never expected to be as popular as we were in the restaurants, and now we have a reputation for being busy," Pillsbury said.

EXPANSION OF THE cocktail lounges to put a greater emphasis on dining and dancing is planned for the future.

The Marriott has had an overwhelmingly beneficial impact on the Village of Lincolnshire, according to Administrator Walter Eisenstein.

A rooms and admissions tax levied by the village brought $60,000 in revenue for the year; sales tax brought $20,000; and water and sewer revenues rose $50,000 because of the resort, Eisenstein said.

"Adversely, we haven't been affected that much. We spend an extra hour whenever we have to snowplow, and the police chief says it is no worse than any new single-family home. There are not that many calls out there," Eisenstein said.

TRAFFIC HAS CAUSED some problems, and the village is trying to get the state to put a traffic light at the Marriott entrance on Milwaukee Avenue. Village studies show 9,000 cars come in and out of the Marriott per day, and three auto accidents have occurred at the entrance since the resort opened.

The effect the resort has had on flooding and water retention in Lincolnshire and downstreams areas draws some disagreement.

F. T. "Mike" Graham, Lake County Planning, Building and Zoning Committee chairman, said, "If not the entire area, at least 90 per cent of the area is built in the flood plain.

"I'm sure it provides a service. My major objection is the fact that the Marriott people found cheap flood plain land, annexed it to a village without strict ordinances and the entire complex will have a noticeable effect on flooding downstream," Graham said.

THE HOTEL complex will cost taxpayers through subsidized flood insurance and government programs to clean out water holding areas, according to Graham.

Pillsbury and Eisenstein disagree, however.

Pillsbury said eight man-made lakes are located on the property. "Every cubic foot we took out of the flood plain, we put back in reservoirs and water retention areas."

Eisenstein said that the golf course is a water retention area, and was inundated with water during the rainy period in mid-March.

"If it hadn't been there, I'm sure the flooding would have been more extensive in Lincolnshire," Eisenstein said.

Pillsbury said the Marriott Corp. is pleased with Lake County and the Chicago area.

"We think Lake County and the whole metropolitan area is a tremendous place to live and do business. We have easily over $100 million invested in Lake County operations, and we are looking at more growth and development."

An industrial park is planned near the Marriott Great America Park in Gurnee, Pillsbury said, as well as improvements to the resort facilities in Lincolnshire.

"Lake County epitomizes everything good about American life, business and growth in the next 10 years. It has culture, life style, entertainment and a very stable and healthy government situation throughout the area. We look forward to a banner year," Pillsbury said.

Homeowners-village meeting tonight

A coalition of Arlington Heights homeowners associations has asked village trustees to attend a meeting today in hopes of establishing better relations between the village board and homeowners groups.

The public is invited to the meeting, which will begin at 8 p.m. in the Williamsburg Room at the Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Assn., 25 E. Campbell St.

It is the second meeting of the coalition, which was formed this year, said Joan Hammerstone, president of the Westgate Civic Assn.

"What we're trying to do is get a better rapport going with the board. It is intended to be an open forum — an open flow of communication," Mrs. Hammerstone said.

"We want the homeowners associations to know the meeting is to be on a positive basis. We would like to cement a relationship, rather than constantly fight with them (trustees)," she said.

"WE WANT to show the board we can work together on a positive basis if they keep us informed. The (Chicago Bears) stadium proposal last year was an example. Once we were informed, things settled down," she said.

No agenda has been outlined for the meeting, but Mrs. Hammerstone predicted the proposed repeal of the village's utility tax will be discussed extensively.

"The board seems to be split on this subject and we'd like to know if repealing the tax will force our taxes up," she said.

Mrs. Hammerstone said the coalition hopes to meet every 2-3 months, with homeowners association presidents taking turns setting up the meetings.

Joint parks facility use discussion today

A special meeting of the Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove park districts will be held today to negotiate joint use of facilities and boundary agreements between the two districts.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. at the Buffalo Grove Aquadome indoor swimming pool, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads, Buffalo Grove.

In the past, the two districts have had reciprocal agreements allowing residents of one district to use the facilities of the other district.

Pickets protest abortions at hospital

Life Committee, Illinois Citizens for Life, Illinois Citizens Concerned for Life, Illinois Nurses who Find Abortion Not Tolerable (INFANT) and area churches at 1 p.m. began marching along Central Road.

The protest was quiet and orderly, and several Arlington Heights police cars were stationed nearby.

LAURA CANNING, assistant director of the Illinois Right to Life Committee, said perhaps 65 per cent of the Northwest suburban population opposes abortion.

"It's a community opposing something inherently wrong, and the hospital is doing something out of step with what it's designed to do — to save life," she said.

Joseph M. Scheidler, executive director of the Illinois Right to Life Committee, said antiabortionists were "surprised by the policy shift — to destroy human beings in abortions. It's just as valuable a human life as yours or mine, but it's not wanted by the mother."

'Hello Dolly' to be staged this week at Forest View

The Broadway hit "Hello Dolly" comes to the stage at Forest View High School Thursday through Saturday.

"Hello Dolly" is the musical adaptation of Thornton Wilder's play "The Matchmaker" and is based on the activities of widowed matchmaker Dolly Levi. The play is set in New York in the 1890s.

Performances will be given at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday in the theater of the school, 2901 Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights. Tickets are $2.50 and may be purchased at the box office or from members of the cast.

The spring musical is directed by Jerry Swanson with Jeff Lovell responsible for design and Geri Kulhanek as choreographer. Dancers are Erin Cooksley, Diane Reily, Judy Gordon, Lilibeth Rivera, Ann McGovney, Cherry Brazeau, Al Olsen, Pat Kasprowicz, Scott Stevens and Mike Serino. A chorus of 45 persons also is featured.

A coalition of Arlington Heights homeowners associations has asked village trustees to attend a meeting today in hopes of establishing better relations between the village board and homeowners groups.

The public is invited to the meeting, which will begin at 8 p.m. in the Williamsburg Room at the Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Assn., 25 E. Campbell St.

It is the second meeting of the coalition, which was formed this year, said Joan Hammerstone, president of the Westgate Civic Assn.

"What we're trying to do is get a better rapport going with the board. It is intended to be an open forum — an open flow of communication," Mrs. Hammerstone said.

"We want the homeowners associations to know the meeting is to be on a positive basis. We would like to cement a relationship, rather than constantly fight with them (trustees)," she said.

"WE WANT to show the board we can work together on a positive basis if they keep us informed. The (Chicago Bears) stadium proposal last year was an example. Once we were informed, things settled down," she said.

No agenda has been outlined for the meeting, but Mrs. Hammerstone predicted the proposed repeal of the village's utility tax will be discussed extensively.

"The board seems to be split on this subject and we'd like to know if repealing the tax will force our taxes up," she said.

Mrs. Hammerstone said the coalition hopes to meet every 2-3 months, with homeowners association presidents taking turns setting up the meetings.

Joint parks facility use discussion today

A special meeting of the Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove park districts will be held today to negotiate joint use of facilities and boundary agreements between the two districts.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. at the Buffalo Grove Aquadome indoor swimming pool, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads, Buffalo Grove.

In the past, the two districts have had reciprocal agreements allowing residents of one district to use the facilities of the other district.

Life Committee, Illinois Citizens for Life, Illinois Citizens Concerned for Life, Illinois Nurses who Find Abortion Not Tolerable (INFANT) and area churches at 1 p.m. began marching along Central Road.

The protest was quiet and orderly, and several Arlington Heights police cars were stationed nearby.

LAURA CANNING, assistant director of the Illinois Right to Life Committee, said perhaps 65 per cent of the Northwest suburban population opposes abortion.

"It's a community opposing something inherently wrong, and the hospital is doing something out of step with what it's designed to do — to save life," she said.

Joseph M. Scheidler, executive director of the Illinois Right to Life Committee, said antiabortionists were "surprised by the policy shift — to destroy human beings in abortions. It's just as valuable a human life as yours or mine, but it's not wanted by the mother."

'Hello Dolly' to be staged this week at Forest View

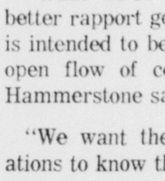

The Broadway hit "Hello Dolly" comes to the stage at Forest View High School Thursday through Saturday.

"Hello Dolly" is the musical adaptation of Thornton Wilder's play "The Matchmaker" and is based on the activities of widowed matchmaker Dolly Levi. The play is set in New York in the 1890s.

Performances will be given at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday in the theater of the school, 2901 Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights. Tickets are $2.50 and may be purchased at the box office or from members of the cast.

The spring musical is directed by Jerry Swanson with Jeff Lovell responsible for design and Geri Kulhanek as choreographer. Dancers are Erin Cooksley, Diane Reily, Judy Gordon, Lilibeth Rivera, Ann McGovney, Cherry Brazeau, Al Olsen, Pat Kasprowicz, Scott Stevens and Mike Serino. A chorus of 45 persons also is featured.

For full pardon of conviction

Kerner dies; last wish pending

by United Press International

Otto Kerner Jr., 67, a fallen political hero who twice served as Illinois governor, died Sunday from the effects of lung cancer without achieving his last wish — a full pardon from his federal bribery conviction.

With his son Tony and daughter Helen at his bedside, Kerner died at 4:35 a.m. in Illinois Masonic Medical Center where he had spent his last four weeks. Rose Kerner, his 90-year-old mother, was notified a short time later.

"We feel that death was more merciful to dad than the last several years of his life," Tony said.

KERNER WAS the first sitting federal judge to be convicted of a felony.

His fortunes declined steadily after his indictment in December, 1971, a bitter blow for a man long accustomed to admiration and respect.

He was elected governor on a Democrat ticket in 1960 and was still governor in 1968 when President Johnson named him to the U.S. Court of Appeals — the same seat his father had held.

IN 1967 Johnson named him to head the National Commission on Civil Disorders, and the "Kerner Commission" reported that the nation was moving toward "two societies, one black, one white — separate and unequal."

He was convicted on Feb. 19, 1973, of having taken racetrack stock as a bribe during his second term as governor.

Tony Kerner, a Chicago banker, said U.S. Sen. Charles Percy had told him he expected President Ford to act on the pardon request within a week, according to a friend of the Kerner family. The friend said Tony told his father about the encouraging news in the pardon bid while he lay gravely ill and heavily sedated.

Full unit district data still lacking for final decision

Education today
by Dorothy Oliver

Did the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 unit district study committee have all the information it needed to decide whether a unit district is a good idea?

The question has been asked often and the answer probably is no.

The committee has recommended taking the issue to the voters, and petitions have been presented to the county schools superintendent for review — the first step in a rather long process to get permission to hold the unit referendum.

Dist. 59 currently operates under a "dual district" system, as do all elementary and high school districts in this area. A unit district would combine the operations of high school and elementary schools under one board and administration.

THE SYSTEM is not revolutionary. In fact it is the only system in many states and in Illinois a number of districts already have converted.

The Dist. 59 board hired a consultant to work with the committee in its unit district study. The ultimate question of whether a unit system is best for Dist. 59 has been overshadowed by whether the consultants did their job and more recently, whether there was an ulterior motive for holding the study in the first place.

The consultants could have saved committee members a lot of time by simply stating at the first meeting that they recommended a unit district. It was evident throughout the study that the consultants were presenting only pro-unit information.

For example, if the unit district were formed, Dist. 59 would take over two of the eight High School Dist. 214 schools. The consultants rambled on and on about how there would be no need to build additional elementary or high schools (which was obvious, because Dist. 59 has a declining enrollment), but failed to mention that one of the high schools Dist. 59 would receive needs more than $1 million in repairs. They also failed to mention that the administration would probably need a larger building than Dist. 59 currently has.

WHILE DISCUSSING the educational impact of the unit district, the consultants talked about the district wide programs offered at various high schools in Dist. 214 and suggested a cooperative agreement could be worked out so students from the Dist. 59 unit still could sign up for programs in other Dist. 214 schools.

They failed to mention, however, what would happen if a cooperative agreement could not be arranged. What would the financial impact be to the Dist. 59 unit if they had to provide those programs?

Recently a Dist. 59 board member has charged that the reason a unit district study was started in the first place was because a "deal" had been worked out with businessmen from the industrial park that a unit would be considered in return for the businessmen's support for a referendum held last fall. Business and industry stand to benefit from the unit district, as it would have a lower tax rate than Dist. 59 and Dist. 214 combined.

The board member also criticized the way the unit study was conducted, the secrecy in which the petitions were filed and the conduct of some board members and administrators.

WE WERE involved in the secrecy surrounding the filing of the unit petitions. Although we made a number of inquiries about when the petitions would be filed — including the day of the filing — information was deliberately withheld by committee members to teach The Herald a lesson for taking an earlier editorial stance that was not favorable to the unit district. Several people later admitted they had lied to us, but told reporters on other papers the correct information.

The unit district concept basically is a good one but it is not the be-all and end-all in education. Before the decision is put to a vote, people in the community need complete information. The atmosphere in which the Dist. 59 unit has been discussed certainly has not allowed that need to be fulfilled.

Thank you from your friends at Prudential

These hard-working people at Prudential's Palatine Office have just won a President's Citation.

Only the top Prudential offices can earn this award for exceptional sales and service. And this is the 13th time they've won national leadership honors.

But they'll be the first to admit it was the wholehearted support of the people in the community that made it possible.

It's nice that good service makes such good friends.

Sure I run for my health. I'm afraid the old station will collapse on me!

The way we see it

Let's get new station

We urge Arlington Heights officials to continue to seek a colonial design for the new downtown Arlington Heights commuter station — the busiest station on the Chicago and North Western Ry. line.

The Arlington Heights Village Board has agreed to hire an architect and contractor for the new $180,000 building. Construction is to start this summer, with completion in the fall. The station will be built east of the present station, which will be demolished.

During negotiations between the village and the railroad, both Village Pres. James Ryan and Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson expressed a preference for the colonial style rather than a flat-roof design of many newer railroad stations, including the one at Arlington Park.

We agree with them; the colonial style would be far more attractive and would provide a focal point for future downtown Arlington Heights redevelopment.

The downtown Arlington Heights railroad station, with 3,900 riders daily, is the most frequently used station in the metropolitan area. If properly located and designed, the station will be an important asset to the community and the area.

We urge Ryan and Hanson to continue to seek the best possible facility, for as Hanson says, "It will be here for at least the next 75 years."

Schlickman's correct

"Conflict of interest" is a term which often causes public officials to shrug their shoulders and say "who me?"

This was the reaction of Illinois House Majority Leader Gerald Shea, D-Riverside, when it was disclosed he had sponsored medical malpractice legislation at the same time he was doing work for the state medical society.

Shea denied a conflict existed, and that appeared to be that.

Not quite. State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, has introduced a resolution to censure Shea for his conduct. The move appears unprecedented.

We believe Schlickman's approach is correct.

A full hearing is warranted on the matter, first to determine if there was a conflict and second to give Shea an opportunity to explain his actions.

There are too many instances in Illinois' political history in which serious mistakes by public officials have been covered up or ignored by their colleagues.

Shea's apparent conflict should be investigated in a fair and open manner.

If public officials expect to receive the respect and confidence of the public, they must treat resolutions like Schlickman's seriously and in the open.

Is education relevant?

John Ryor

Topic: "Education Today — How Relevant?" is discussed by John Ryor, president of the National Education Association, and Rep. Albert H. Quie of Minnesota, ranking Republican on the House Education and Labor Committee. This article is adapted from a debate at the National Town Meeting which is held each Wednesday in Washington, D.C. at the Kennedy Center where public figures answer questions on current national issues.

Rep. Albert Quie

Is today's education relevant?

Relevant to what or to whom? Relevant to what we've been or what we hope to be? If we, as a society, consider a relevant education as one designed to satisfy only our immediate needs, our immediate interests, vocational preparation, then something is seriously wrong with our attitudes. As a teacher and a parent, I think it's important to develop citizens capable of making decisions and of learning for a lifetime. In this world of future shock, when many of today's jobs are destined to go the way of the blacksmith, being able to continue learning and deciding how to change is extremely important. Unfortunately, this isn't what most Americans think of when they talk about relevance in education. (And) I don't believe we can talk about relevance in education without talking about the impact of television — one of the most pervasive educators in all contemporary life. Young people spend more time with TV than with their parents or in schools. This reliance on TV makes it much harder to teach. Students expect to be entertained. But schooling often isn't easy and often isn't entertaining. We can't always package classroom learning as a Sesame Street program. Stephen Muller of Johns Hopkins University has said that lack of motivation is the most serious ill besetting public education in this country. Unmotivated students place the burden on schools of instilling and maintaining motivation, resulting in an increased effort at entertainment and decreased discipline at the cost of deteriorating academic standards.

Should schools get back to basics?

The contention that many children come out of school today illiterate, taken by itself, is not a fair assessment of what is really happening in education. The public school today is dealing with a much wider range of problems than it ever has in the past, and this certainly creates an unusual weight on the classroom teacher to deal with those problems as well as the cognitive skills of reading, writing and arithmetic. Reading is important, writing is important but the major questions that confront us today are largely human relations problems. We need to do both things. We need to teach the cognitive skills and to address ourselves very seriously to human problems.

Should schools teach values?

The whole question of values and what constitutes values comes up against a variety of interests in the community but I do belive it is possible for schools to develop value education — to the point where children are helped to sort out choices, to verbalize them. Too often, even adults don't really come face to face with their own values until quite late in life. And we stumble on them quite often by accident. But I think it is possible to help students sort values out, help them make choices, much earlier than we do.

How should schools be funded?

The federal government must take a larger share of the cost of education. Classes are increasingly overcrowded, the property tax rolls are increasingly burdened and the need for greater, wider, more divergent education is larger each day. It is our view that the federal government certainly has to face up to its share of the responsibility.

Is today's education relevant?

The question is whether by relevance we mean now, from the point of view of the student, or whether we are talking about what is necessary for one to lead a meaningful lifetime. I have the feeling that one of the causes of the lowering of test scores is the fact that the educational system has been attempting to make education "relevant" and, therefore, not filling the needs of students for later on in life. There are now, for instance, fewer courses given in secondary schools in English composition while there are more courses in sociological problems that people have, evidently (in an attempt) to be relevant. It seems to me that it is necessary to utilize some of the strengths that once were available through our educational system— that is older students teaching younger students so that younger students learn more and the older students, in the teaching process, also learn more. There also is the problem of the world community becoming smaller. Our educational system does not, in my estimation, meet the needs of students to understand the language and culture of people in other nations. That is necessary if we are to be a well-educated people. Schools also fail in handling our technology. Some institutions have progressed rapidly and educate students in the newest technology but most of them still lag behind. And there is the question of students needing a formal education throughout their lives.

Should schools get back to basics?

Congress became concerned about inadequacy in the teaching of basics in 1965 and passed the Elementary and Secondary Educaton Act, Title I, the largest aid to schools that there is. While there has been substantial criticism of Title I — and very questionable as to how much good it did in the first five years — everything I have seen in studies made now show it's worth the money. There has been tremendous improvement in achievement of students with the use of that money. Ten years ago, I used to get a great deal of disagreement from teachers. They said there are so many more important things to teach than basics. Now, they don't want to argue about basics.

Should schools teach values?

Of all the areas where I believe we need to make more progress, (the most important) is the area of values, developing the moral and ethical standards of young people. It is interesting that in Gallup polls, 84 per cent of the parents with children in public schools and 87 per cent of parents with children in parochial schools felt that the education system itself ought to be teaching more values than it has been, despite the controversy that arises. It seems to me that there are some basic values that most everyone could agree on rather than get into arguments on ones where there are disagreements.

How should schools be funded?

We will continue to have a basic responsibility, especially for elementary and secondary schools, at the state rather than the federal level. There will be an increase in federal participation in the funding of schools but it is still going to be basically the responsibility of the states.

Abortions still concern of residents

It is with a deep sense of horror and disbelief that I have learned of the decision of the board of directors of Northwest Community Hospital to allow abortions to be performed there during the first trimester of life. In so doing, Northwest Community Hospital is trading its fine reputation as an institution devoted to the preservation and restoration of life for one of an institution in which murder is committed — murder with the full sanction of the board of directors.

This nefarious and odious decision will affect my freedom to contribute in a positive and meaningful way to the hospital in the future. I will find it exceedingly painful to even enter the hospital structure knowing that murder is carried on there. I will find it difficult to admit my patients, all who are children and teenagers, to this hospital where murder will be committed within its confines with impunity. I understand fully and sympathize with the convictions and feelings of the many parents of my patients who have told me they do not want their children hospitalized in an institution that allows abortions to be done, and therefore, I urge the hospital to reconsider and reverse the recent decision of the board of directors allowing abortions to be done at the hospital, and to do so with all deliberate haste.

I am sure that it is as unpleasant for Malcolm MacCoun to read this as it is for me to write it. I cannot, however, let the board's recent decision to allow abortions to be performed at Northwest Community Hospital to go without a word of protest.

I am very disappointed to see that such little value is placed on human life at NWCH. Whatever happened to the idea that lives are saved or at least prolonged at hospitals? Ask Andy

Hoopoe colorfully feathered bird

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbrook of Science and the Future to Berkley Crosland, 14, of Mullins, S.C., for her question: WHAT IS A HOOPOE?

The hoopoe (pronounced who-pooh) is not a native bird of North or South America. His favorite territorites are the warm, dry areas of Africa, Europe and Asia. Here his bright appearance adds a festive touch to the landscape. Related to the kingfishers and the hornbills, these birds have long been noted for their colorful plumage.

A sound that accompanies spring in Africa, southern Europe or southern Asia is the distinctive "hoop-hoop" of the hoopoe. And the bird that goes with the song is just as distinctive. Its breast, head and back sport plumage of a soft orange-brown color. The wings and tail are brilliant black with fancy white stripes. Its most prominent feature, however, is a crest of long feathers tipped with black.

The hoopoes are birds of spreading meadows and pasture lands. Their favorite nest sites are in hollow trees. They are not overly fussy, though, and a hole in a wall, dirt bank or even in a pile of rocks will do just as well.

When spring comes, Mr. and Mrs. Hoopoe shop around for a likely nesting place. It seems that the only requirement is a site protected and large enough for Mrs. Hoopoe's 12-inch body. After building the next, she goes to work and lays five to 10 greenish to brownish-gray eggs.

Most birds share the job of keeping the eggs warm. Not so with the hoopoe. Mrs. Hoopoe is content to sit on her eggs for two weeks or so while Mr. Hoopoe is busy bringing home the groceries and guarding the nest. His slender two-inch bill is just right for picking through leaves and debris on he ground in search of just the right tidbit. Worms, spiders, insects and, if he is quick enough, small lizards become tasty meals.

Mr. Hoopoe's high crest feathers come into action during nest-guarding time. Although they usually sag in a shaggy hairdo fashion, when he gets excited or alarmed, he raises and lowers his topknot in an eye-catching display. Most of this activity is just bluff, however, for when frightened he flattens himself to the ground and plays dead.

Compared to most birds, Mrs. Hoopoe is a very untidy housekeeper. She never cleans her nest, and in a short time it begins to smell. This does not seem to bother the hoopoe family in the least. Perhaps they feel that it keeps unwanted company from calling.

The hoopoe has been known and admired since ancient times. Many fables and tales have been told about him. One of these tales says that his original crest was fashioned from feathers of pure gold. To keep from being hunted for his golden crest, the bird appealed to wise King Solomon for help. The problem was solved when the golden feathers were changed into real feathers.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Ricky Oliver, 8, of Derby, Kan., for his question: HOW DO BANANAS GROW?

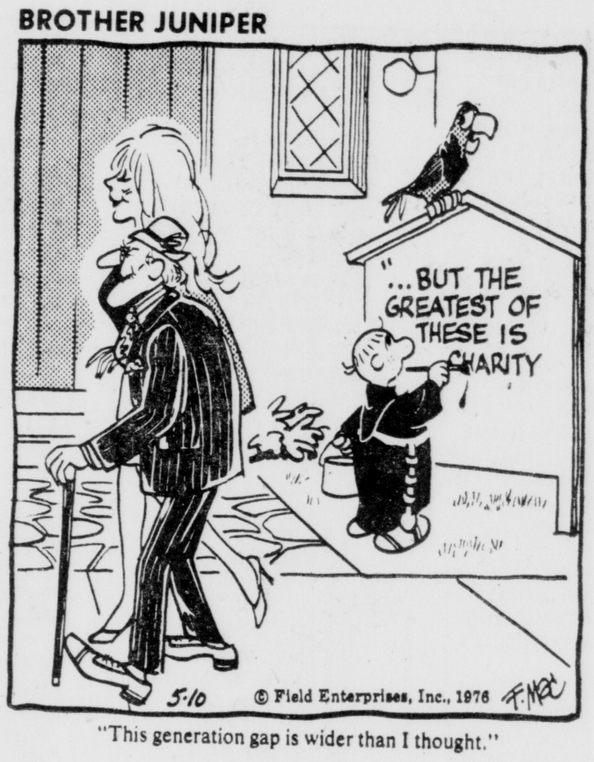

Year-round favorites and nutritious besides, bananas grow from a plant reaching heights of 25 feet. Among its many huge leaves, each banana plant bears only a single stem producing the fruit, which forms in bunches. From 70 to 200 bananas, weighing from 75 to 125 pounds, mature on the plant when it is about 14 months old. Once the plant has produced its fruit, it is cut down and a new plant is grown from the base.

Several new plants may be started from the roots of a mature banana plant. Growers take healthy root stalks, or rhizomes, and cut them in several sections. These are then placed in holes about a foot deep. Although the banana plant is very tall, it is not a tree because it has no trunk or boughs. It is made up of long, glossy leaf stalks wrapped tightly at the base. These fan out as they stretch upward. Thriving in a hot, damp climate, bananas are grown commercially in Hawaii, Latin America, Mexico and South America. Brazil takes the prize as the world's leading banana-growing country.

Ask Andy

Hoopoe colorfully feathered bird

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbrook of Science and the Future to Berkley Crosland, 14, of Mullins, S.C., for her question: WHAT IS A HOOPOE?

The hoopoe (pronounced who-pooh) is not a native bird of North or South America. His favorite territorites are the warm, dry areas of Africa, Europe and Asia. Here his bright appearance adds a festive touch to the landscape. Related to the kingfishers and the hornbills, these birds have long been noted for their colorful plumage.

A sound that accompanies spring in Africa, southern Europe or southern Asia is the distinctive "hoop-hoop" of the hoopoe. And the bird that goes with the song is just as distinctive. Its breast, head and back sport plumage of a soft orange-brown color. The wings and tail are brilliant black with fancy white stripes. Its most prominent feature, however, is a crest of long feathers tipped with black.

The hoopoes are birds of spreading meadows and pasture lands. Their favorite nest sites are in hollow trees. They are not overly fussy, though, and a hole in a wall, dirt bank or even in a pile of rocks will do just as well.

When spring comes, Mr. and Mrs. Hoopoe shop around for a likely nesting place. It seems that the only requirement is a site protected and large enough for Mrs. Hoopoe's 12-inch body. After building the next, she goes to work and lays five to 10 greenish to brownish-gray eggs.

Most birds share the job of keeping the eggs warm. Not so with the hoopoe. Mrs. Hoopoe is content to sit on her eggs for two weeks or so while Mr. Hoopoe is busy bringing home the groceries and guarding the nest. His slender two-inch bill is just right for picking through leaves and debris on he ground in search of just the right tidbit. Worms, spiders, insects and, if he is quick enough, small lizards become tasty meals.

Mr. Hoopoe's high crest feathers come into action during nest-guarding time. Although they usually sag in a shaggy hairdo fashion, when he gets excited or alarmed, he raises and lowers his topknot in an eye-catching display. Most of this activity is just bluff, however, for when frightened he flattens himself to the ground and plays dead.

Compared to most birds, Mrs. Hoopoe is a very untidy housekeeper. She never cleans her nest, and in a short time it begins to smell. This does not seem to bother the hoopoe family in the least. Perhaps they feel that it keeps unwanted company from calling.

The hoopoe has been known and admired since ancient times. Many fables and tales have been told about him. One of these tales says that his original crest was fashioned from feathers of pure gold. To keep from being hunted for his golden crest, the bird appealed to wise King Solomon for help. The problem was solved when the golden feathers were changed into real feathers.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Ricky Oliver, 8, of Derby, Kan., for his question:

HOW DO BANANAS GROW?

Year-round favorites and nutritious besides, bananas grow from a plant reaching heights of 25 feet. Among its many huge leaves, each banana plant bears only a single stem producing the fruit, which forms in bunches. From 70 to 200 bananas, weighing from 75 to 125 pounds, mature on the plant when it is about 14 months old. Once the plant has produced its fruit, it is cut down and a new plant is grown from the base.

Several new plants may be started from the roots of a mature banana plant. Growers take healthy root stalks, or rhizomes, and cut them in several sections. These are then placed in holes about a foot deep. Although the banana plant is very tall, it is not a tree because it has no trunk or boughs. It is made up of long, glossy leaf stalks wrapped tightly at the base. These fan out as they stretch upward. Thriving in a hot, damp climate, bananas are grown commercially in Hawaii, Latin America, Mexico and South America. Brazil takes the prize as the world's leading banana-growing country.

Thinking ends guesswork

Oswald: "In 'Bridge Logic,' H.W. Kelsey shows a couple of hundred bridge hands where common sense reasoning makes it possible for a thinking player to substitute a sure thing or near sure thing for a guess."

Jim: "The hands range from simple to complex. For instance, let's look at his first example."

Oswald: "South is in four spades. West opens the king of hearts and continues after dummy ducks. South wins that trick and leads a trump to West's ace. A third heart is led and ruffed, trumps are drawn, a diamond is led from dummy, East plays low."

Jim: "An unthinking South has to guess between the play of the king or the jack. The thinker doesn't have to guess."

Oswald: "West dealt and passed. He has shown up with the king and queen of hearts and ace of spades. If he also held the ace of diamonds he would have opened the bidding so thinker South plays his king of diamonds."

Saturday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Thinking ends guesswork

Oswald: "In 'Bridge Logic,' H.W. Kelsey shows a couple of hundred bridge hands where common sense reasoning makes it possible for a thinking player to substitute a sure thing or near sure thing for a guess."

Jim: "The hands range from simple to complex. For instance, let's look at his first example."

Oswald: "South is in four spades. West opens the king of hearts and continues after dummy ducks. South wins that trick and leads a trump to West's ace. A third heart is led and ruffed, trumps are drawn, a diamond is led from dummy, East plays low."

Jim: "An unthinking South has to guess between the play of the king or the jack. The thinker doesn't have to guess."

Oswald: "West dealt and passed. He has shown up with the king and queen of hearts and ace of spades. If he also held the ace of diamonds he would have opened the bidding so thinker South plays his king of diamonds."

Conant, Wheeling win in baseball districts

Conant scored four runs in the top of the fifth inning Saturday — after it looked like Schaumburg's Bob Connell had pitched out of a bases-loaded jam — as the Cougars edged past the Saxons, 5-3, in the opener of the Hoffman Estates district baseball tourney.

The Conant victory, which puts the Cougars into today's 4 p.m. senifinal game gainst Palatine, was one of just three area district matches that was played. Wet grounds Saturday forced postponement of all others except Wheeling's 4-1 win over Deerfield and Glenbrook North's 15-8 victory over Prospect.

Connell was pitching in relief in the fifth inning trying to protect a 2-1 lead over Conant in Saturday's opener at Hoffman.

Connell had moved over to the mound from shortstop in the fourth when the Cougars put runners on first and second with no outs, and the Saxon righty pitched out of that jam.

Then in the fifth, after Dan Neswold singled and Danny Mullin doubled, Connell walked opposing pitcher Rob Totten to load the bases with no one out. But Connell fanned cleanup hitter Jeff Johnson and got Scott Schaefer to tap back to the mound for a force at the plate.

Dave Brumm, Conant's designated hitter, walked to force in the tying run, however. Then Connell got the next hitter, Roger Schweigert, to hit a towering pop-up directly over the plate and catcher Russ Zonca circled under it.

But Zonca lost the ball, perhaps in the sun, and it fell safely just a foot or two fair as the go-ahead run scored. Mike Heleniak then delivered a solid hit to center to drive in a pair of very important insurance runs.

Zonca, the Saxons' hitting star with three hits, had started a third-inning rally that put Schaumburg ahead. His booming triple into right-centerfield preceded an RBI single in the infield by Terry Zarback.

Conant had taken a 1-0 lead in the first inning on a pair of errors and a base hit by Schaefer. The Saxons tied it in the second with an unearned run of their own. Dave Jones doubled and scored with a two-out error on a fly ball by Schaumburg starting pitcher Tim McCue.

Totten went the distance on the mound for the Cougars, scattering nine hits and whiffing four. First baseman Neswold made a couple of nice plays to help Totten out of jams, both times robbing Jones of base hits.

In the seventh, Zonca doubled off the fence in left and scored on a triple by Rick Baker. With two out and the tying run at the plate, Jones chopped a grounder to Neswold's right. The Cougar first sacker scooped it up and flipped to Totten covering the bag for the final out.

WHEELING, PECKA OUST DEERFIELD

Keith Pecka survived one inning of shaky pitching and John Miller provided some aid with the bat as Wheeling turned back Deerfield 4-2 in their opening district skirmish at Highland Park.

The Wildcats will now tackle Stevenson on the Patriot diamond at today 4 p.m. in a semifinal outing. The Little Giants will be home at the same time to entertain Lake Forest and the two Monday winners will then hook up to determine a district champ on Tuesday.

Pecka scattered four hits and struck out five in going the route against the Warriors. Four of his six bases on balls came in a bunch however — in the third inning — and Deerfield parlayed them into a game-tying rally.

Wheeling had gone up 2-0 in the top of the third. Bill Luzinski

Judson superb in Suburban win

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

The University of Illinois may have gotten the better deal when Indiana's "Mr. Basketball," Dave Colescott, opted for the University of North Carolina.

Because if Colescott had elected to play for the Illini, Zion-Benton's Rob Judson was going to play basketball somewhere else next year.

"I knew I wanted to play in the Big 10," Judson said Saturday night after leading the Suburban All-Stars to a 92-89 win over the City in the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. All-Star Classic at Buffalo Grove High School, "and if Colescott had signed with Illinois I was going to Michigan State."

Judson, and fellow guards Jamie Macahon and Mark Lavin, were the difference both Saturday and Friday night (when the Suburbs scratched out a 78-77 come-from-behind win) as they shifted the balanced front line match-ups to the Suburbs advantage with some spectacular guard play.

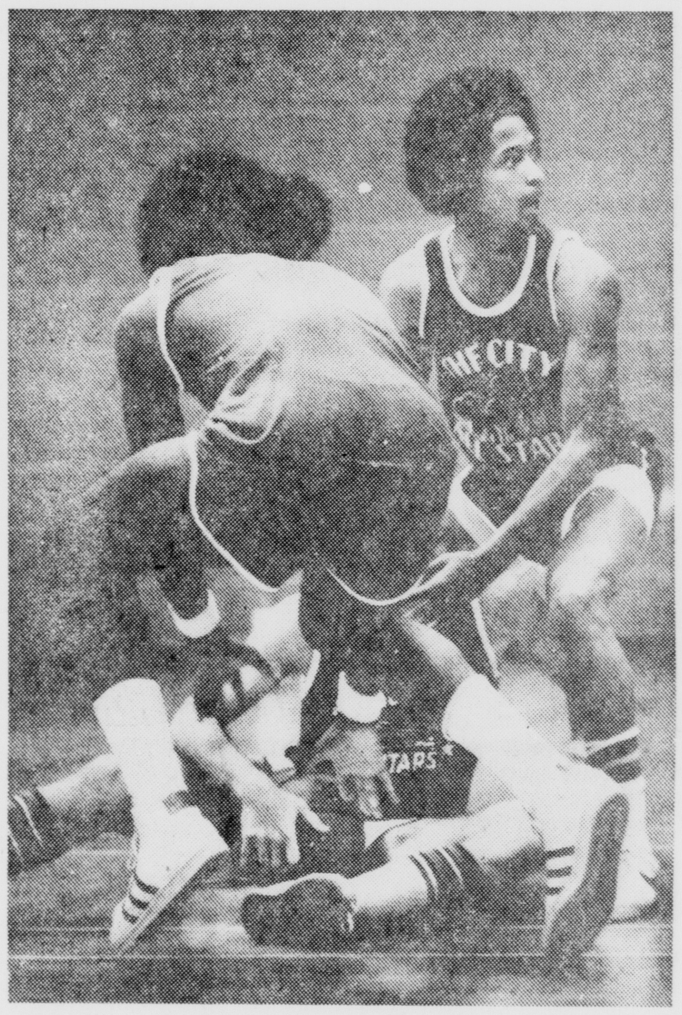

Both teams were loaded with leapers along the forward wall.

The City boasted St. Laurence's Steve Krafcisin, Levi Cobb and Eric Bowman of state champion Morgan Park and Arnette Hallman of Schurz.

The Suburban team countered with East Leyden's Glen Grunwald and John Hendler, Larry Lowe of Bloom, Del Yarbrough of North Chicago and Neil Bresnahan of Fenwick.

The two teams battled to a near standoff on the backboards, with the Suburban team holding a 45-44

Warriors romp in Titan invite

by ART MUGALIAN

While the story of Maine West's 1976 track team begins to reach epic proportions, head coach Ron Brown is beginning to worry.

What worries the coach has nothing to do with his Warriors' embarrassingly easy victory over the rest of the 12-team field in the Titan Invitational meet at Glenbrook South Saturday.

Brown isn't even that concerned about next Saturday's Central Suburban South conference meet, especially since four of the league schools were among the teams Maine West manhandled at the Titan meet.

"I really think we could get 20 guys downstate for the state meet," Brown said after his Warriors captured an incredible 13 first places at Glenbrook South Saturday. "But what worries me is Evanston — they have an awful lot of depth."

The Warriors have won just about every meet they've entered this year, including the Blue Demon Relays, the Central Suburban indoor meet, the Palatine Relays, and the Prospect Invite. But Brown knows that Evanston is hard to handle, especially in a district meet and particularly at Glenbrook South where the meet will be held May 20.

"Most of our kids have made qualifying marks, but that Glenbrook track is slow for some reason," said Brown, whose Warriors upset Evanston for the district title there last year.

That same track didn't slow down the Warriors last Saturday.

Scot Unger, Jeff Brydges, and Mike Klebe each won two events in the Titan Invite to lead Maine West to 208 points. Second-place Providence had 64 and Glenbrook North 59. Wheeling finished eighth with 28 points as Kurt Rathje won the shot put.

Unger ran in four events and won the 100-yard dash (:10.1 into the wind) and the 440 (:51). He was third in the 220 behind teammate Tony Krainik, just a junior, who ran his second :21.8 in two weeks.

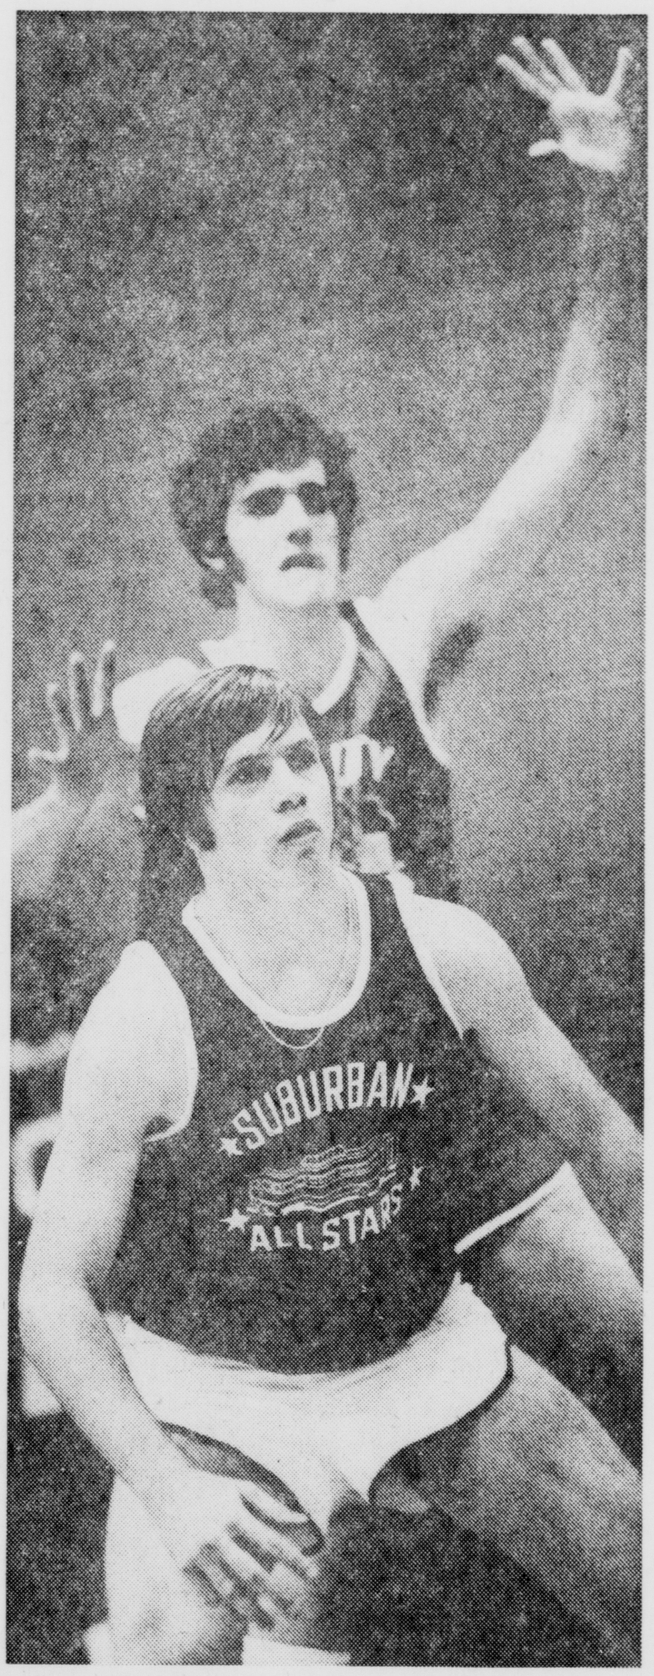

Brydges won the 880 in 1:56.7 and the Warrior junior came back for a first place in the mile (4.28.1). Klebe went 6-2 to win the high jump and broke a meet record in the triple jump at 43-6.

Other winners for the Warriors were Joe Genualdi in the pole vault (13-0), hurdler Joe Farrell in the 330-lows (:40.8), Paul Lippold in the highs (:15.0), junior two-miler Brian Tolan (9.36), and the two-mile relay and mile relay teams. Jim Winiecki, who was second in the pole vault at 13-0, also tied for first in the long jump (20-4¾).

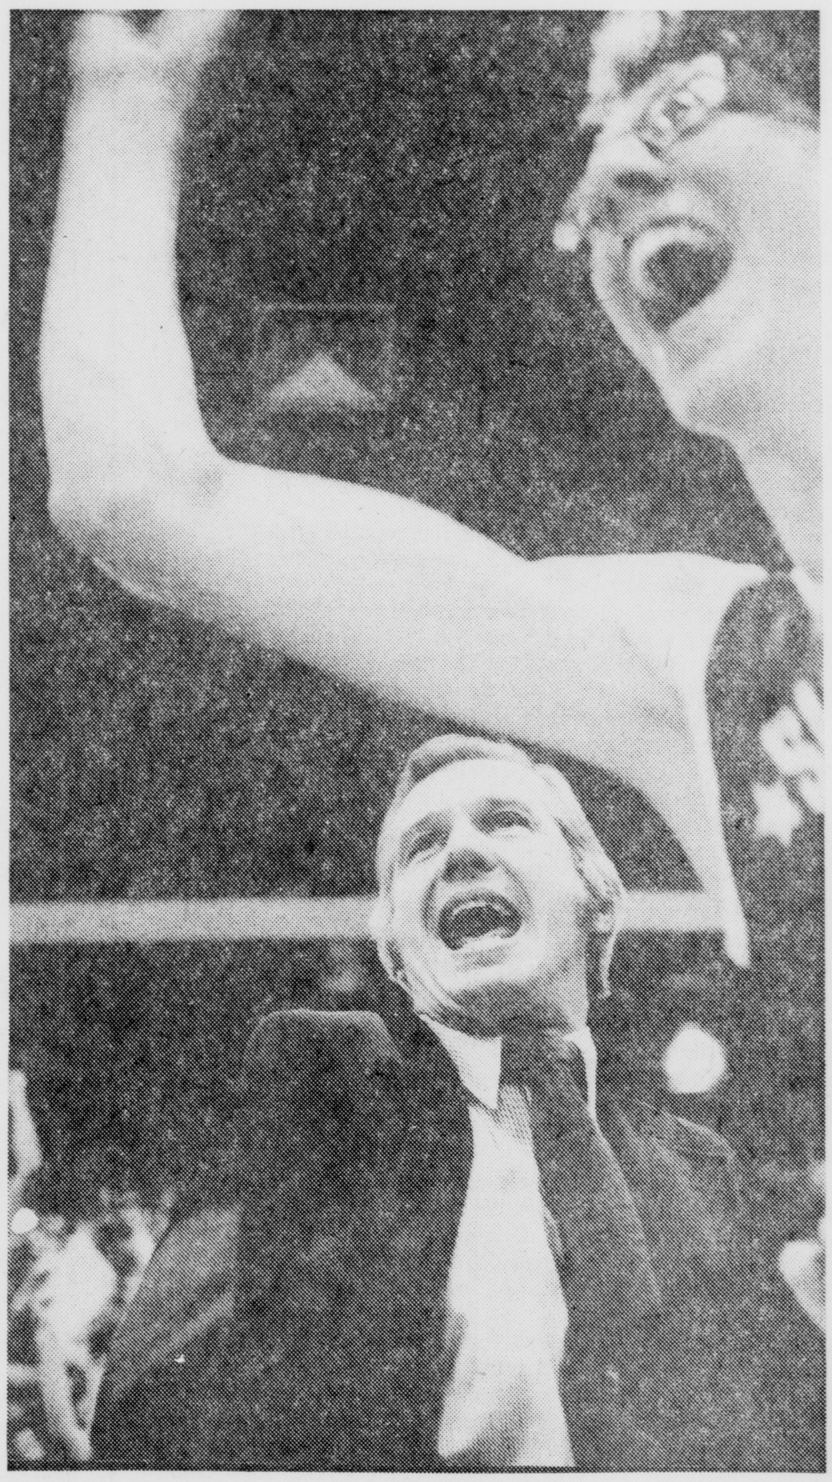

"The fact that we won against several conference schools makes us very happy," said Brown. "We really feel proud. We've been together since eighth grade — this is a great bunch of kids. And today we really clicked."

Other good performances by the Warriors came from Bob Pawelko, second in the two-mile; Krainik in the 100 (a :10.1 for second) Farrell, who was second in the highs; and Lippold, third in the lows.

Wheeling's Rathje, only a junior, took the shot-put title with a personal best of 48-10¾.

Brydges won the 880 in 1:56.7 and the Warrior junior came back for a first place in the mile (4.28.1). Klebe went 6-2 to win the high jump and broke a meet record in the triple jump at 43-6.

Other winners for the Warriors were Joe Genualdi in the pole vault (13-0), hurdler Joe Farrell in the 330-lows (:40.8), Paul Lippold in the highs (:15.0), junior two-miler Brian Tolan (9.36), and the two-mile relay and mile relay teams. Jim Winiecki, who was second in the pole vault at 13-0, also tied for first in the long jump (20-4¾).

"The fact that we won against several conference schools makes us very happy," said Brown. "We really feel proud. We've been together since eighth grade — this is a great bunch of kids. And today we really clicked."

Other good performances by the Warriors came from Bob Pawelko, second in the two-mile; Krainik in the 100 (a :10.1 for second) Farrell, who was second in the highs; and Lippold, third in the lows.

Wheeling's Rathje, only a junior, took the shot-put title with a personal best of 48-10¾.

Judson superb in Suburban win

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

The University of Illinois may have gotten the better deal when Indiana's "Mr. Basketball," Dave Colescott, opted for the University of North Carolina.

Because if Colescott had elected to play for the Illini, Zion-Benton's Rob Judson was going to play basketball somewhere else next year.

"I knew I wanted to play in the Big 10," Judson said Saturday night after leading the Suburban All-Stars to a 92-89 win over the City in the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. All-Star Classic at Buffalo Grove High School, "and if Colescott had signed with Illinois I was going to Michigan State."

Judson, and fellow guards Jamie Macahon and Mark Lavin, were the difference both Saturday and Friday night (when the Suburbs scratched out a 78-77 come-from-behind win) as they shifted the balanced front line match-ups to the Suburbs advantage with some spectacular guard play.

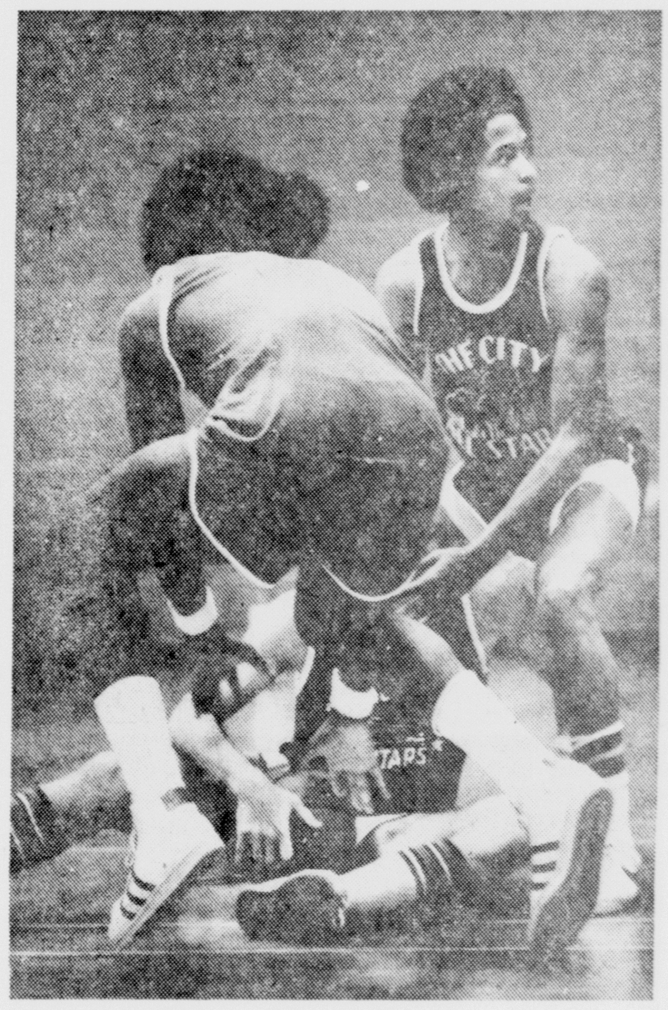

Both teams were loaded with leapers along the forward wall.

The City boasted St. Laurence's Steve Krafcisin, Levi Cobb and Eric Bowman of state champion Morgan Park and Arnette Hallman of Schurz.

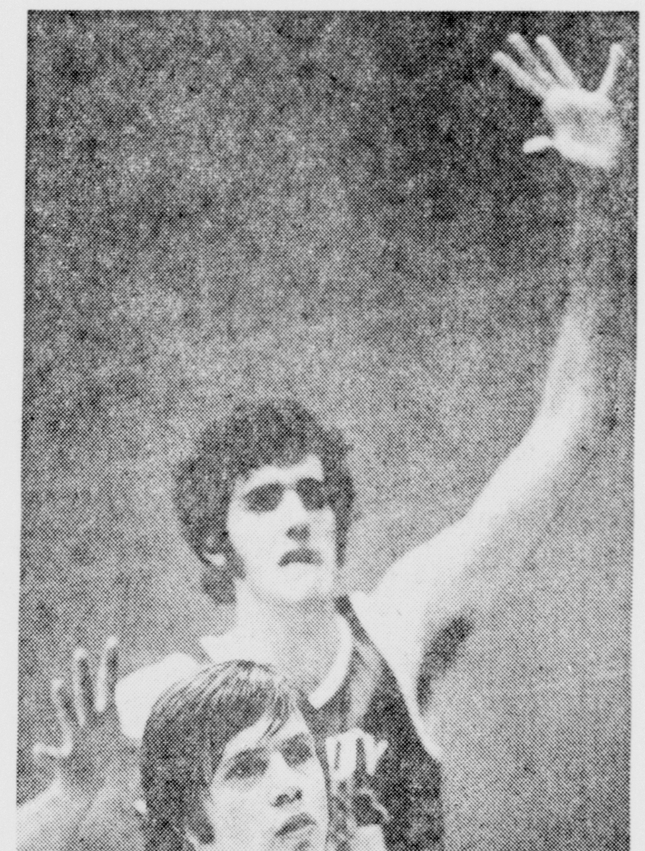

The Suburban team countered with East Leyden's Glen Grunwald and John Hendler, Larry Lowe of Bloom, Del Yarbrough of North Chicago and Neil Bresnahan of Fenwick.

The two teams battled to a near standoff on the backboards, with the Suburban team holding a 45-44

Borg crushes Vilas for World net title

Bjorn Borg steadied himself from an atrocious start Sunday and took advantage of two questionable line calls to win the biggest prize of his career, downing Guillermo Vilas, 1-6, 6-1, 7-5, 6-1 for the World Championship of Tennis title.

The Swedish teen-ager, a month short of his 20th birthday, won the WCT crown after two years of frustrating failure. Borg, a losing finalist to John Newcombe and Arthur Ashe in this tournament the past two years, picked up $60,000 for his win which concluded a four-month tour in 13 countries.

Vilas, making his first appearance in the Dallas finals, settled for $20,000.

Although neither player produced sparkling tennis, Borg proved the steadier as the match dragged on, with Vilas' errors becoming more frequent. The opening game of the match took 10 minutes. At that rate the young Swede and the Argentinian could have been on the court for almost 11 hours.

The longest rally of the match, taking an amazing 83 exchanges to complete, went to Borg in the 11th game and on that point he broke Vilas' serve to decide the third set. Vilas then fell victim to two curious line calls which ultimately spelled his finish.

Lapointe boosts Montreal past Flyers

Defenseman Guy Lapointe scored with only 1:22 remaining Sunday night to give the Montreal Canadiens a 4-3 victory over Philadelphia in the opening game of the Stanley Cup championship finals, despite a record-breaking 16th playoff goal by the Flyers' Reggie Leach.

The second game of the best of seven championship will be played in Montreal Tuesday night.

After the incredible Leach scored with the game only 21 seconds old, extending his personal record to 10 consecutive playoff games with at least one goal, the Canadiens continually found themselves trailing and never led until Lapointe's clincher.

Phoenix wins in double overtime

Veteran Keith Erickson scored eight points in the second overtime as the Phoenix Suns scored 14 straight points to defeat Golden State 133-129 Sunday and even their NBA Western Conference championship series at two games apiece.

The Warriors scored the first four points of the second extra period to move ahead, 123-119, but before they could score again the Suns held a 133-123 advantage.

Erickson totaled 28 points for the game and this included a long jump shot which tied the score at 112-112 with two seconds left in regulation time. Gar Heard followed Erickson in the Suns' scoring with 22. Phil Smith, with 30, and Rick Barry, with 26, led the Warriors.

Golden State led by four with 41 seconds left in the first overtime, but Phoenix rookie Ricky Sobers hit a jumper from the free throw line with 34 seconds left and then was fouled and converted two free throws with two seconds remaining to deadlock the score at 119.

A layup by George Johnson and a jump shot by Barry put the Warriors on top quickly in the second overtime, but with the Warriors hitting a cold streak and Phoenix controlling the boards the Suns raced into command.

Hayes captures Byron Nelson Classic

Mark Hayes, who played his only erratic golf in the final six holes Sunday, held on to a dwindling lead to win the $200,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic by two strokes for his first victory on the PGA tour.

Hayes, who finished dead last in the 1975 Nelson, has threatened the leaders all spring, but said "stupid mistakes" each time kept him from the top. But at the Nelson he led from the first round -- something no one has ever done — to nip Don Bies and win the $40,000 top prize.

Bies had battled with Masters champion Raymond Floyd for second place much of the day, but Floyd dropped back and Bies closed with a brief rush at Hayes. Hayes, of Oklahoma City, made only three bogeys in the 72 holes and finished at 11-under 273 with a closing round of two-under 69 over the 7,017-yard Preston Trails Golf Club course.

Bies, who started the day at six-under, took three strokes off of par Sunday for a final round of 68 and a 275 total worth $22,800 second prize money. Floyd, who won the Masters by a record-tying eight strokes, shot a 69 under threatening skies Sunday to finish with 277 and pick up $14,200. A stroke back in fourth place came Hale Irwin. Ben Crenshaw finished another stroke behind with 279.

Celts club Cavs for 2-0 series lead

John Havlicek, Dave Cowens and Charlie Scott kindled a fourth-period fast break that sparked the Boston Celtics to a 94-89 win over the Cleveland Cavaliers and a 2-0 lead in their NBA Eastern Conference championship series. The teams play game No. 3 Tuesday night in Cleveland.

Boston trailed, 71-68, heading into the final quarter, but after the teams traded baskets, Boston scored 11 unanswered points — mostly on the fast break.

The Celtics maintained their pressure defense, picking up five steals, until Dave Cowens fouled out with 1:57 remaining and Boston ahead 89-81. "We kept going low to Dave (Cowens) after Nate Thurmond fouled out," said White, the game's high scorer with 24 points. "When he (Thurmond) is not in the game, it is a different story. We change our game plan."

Cowens netted eight of his 15 points in the final period after Thurmond fouled out with 4:24 gone. Havlicek finished with 20 points and Scott with 16.

Bobby Smith netted 14 of his 16 points in the first half for Cleveland. Snyder added 16, Jim Cleamons had 14, Campy Russell had 11 and Thurmond 10 for the Cavs.

And in other sports news...

Sally Little holed out from a bunker to birdie the 18th hole and win her first title in five years as a pro in the Women's International Golf Tournament at Hilton Head Island, S.C. Little, from South Africa, picked up a $10,000 check by nipping Australia's Jan Stephenson 281-282 after finishing no better than third in 104 previous starts.

Jockey Braulio Baeza was released from a Long Island hospital Sunday after being thrown from his mount in the ninth race at Belmont Park Saturday . . . Catcher John Ellis of the Texas Rangers is expected to be out of action for six-eight weeks after suffering a dislocated left ankle and broken shin bone in Sunday's game at Boston.

Britain's John Fitzpatrick and Tom Walkinshaw upset the favored Porches to win the third round of the world sports car silhoutte championships in a 3.5 liter BMW at Silverstone, England . . . Meanwhile at Long Pond, Pa., Brian Redman kept his perfect record at Pocono International Raceway intact by driving a Chapparal Lola T332C to victory in the Sports Car Club-U.S. Auto Club Formula 5000 championship race.

Borg crushes Vilas for World net title

Bjorn Borg steadied himself from an atrocious start Sunday and took advantage of two questionable line calls to win the biggest prize of his career, downing Guillermo Vilas, 1-6, 6-1, 7-5, 6-1 for the World Championship of Tennis title.

The Swedish teen-ager, a month short of his 20th birthday, won the WCT crown after two years of frustrating failure. Borg, a losing finalist to John Newcombe and Arthur Ashe in this tournament the past two years, picked up $60,000 for his win which concluded a four-month tour in 13 countries.

Vilas, making his first appearance in the Dallas finals, settled for $20,000.

Although neither player produced sparkling tennis, Borg proved the steadier as the match dragged on, with Vilas' errors becoming more frequent. The opening game of the match took 10 minutes. At that rate the young Swede and the Argentinian could have been on the court for almost 11 hours.

The longest rally of the match, taking an amazing 83 exchanges to complete, went to Borg in the 11th game and on that point he broke Vilas' serve to decide the third set. Vilas then fell victim to two curious line calls which ultimately spelled his finish.

Lapointe boosts Montreal past Flyers

Defenseman Guy Lapointe scored with only 1:22 remaining Sunday night to give the Montreal Canadiens a 4-3 victory over Philadelphia in the opening game of the Stanley Cup championship finals, despite a record-breaking 16th playoff goal by the Flyers' Reggie Leach.

The second game of the best of seven championship will be played in Montreal Tuesday night.

After the incredible Leach scored with the game only 21 seconds old, extending his personal record to 10 consecutive playoff games with at least one goal, the Canadiens continually found themselves trailing and never led until Lapointe's clincher.

Phoenix wins in double overtime

Veteran Keith Erickson scored eight points in the second overtime as the Phoenix Suns scored 14 straight points to defeat Golden State 133-129 Sunday and even their NBA Western Conference championship series at two games apiece.

The Warriors scored the first four points of the second extra period to move ahead, 123-119, but before they could score again the Suns held a 133-123 advantage.

Erickson totaled 28 points for the game and this included a long jump shot which tied the score at 112-112 with two seconds left in regulation time. Gar Heard followed Erickson in the Suns' scoring with 22. Phil Smith, with 30, and Rick Barry, with 26, led the Warriors.

Golden State led by four with 41 seconds left in the first overtime, but Phoenix rookie Ricky Sobers hit a jumper from the free throw line with 34 seconds left and then was fouled and converted two free throws with two seconds remaining to deadlock the score at 119.

A layup by George Johnson and a jump shot by Barry put the Warriors on top quickly in the second overtime, but with the Warriors hitting a cold streak and Phoenix controlling the boards the Suns raced into command.

Hayes captures Byron Nelson Classic

Mark Hayes, who played his only erratic golf in the final six holes Sunday, held on to a dwindling lead to win the $200,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic by two strokes for his first victory on the PGA tour.

Hayes, who finished dead last in the 1975 Nelson, has threatened the leaders all spring, but said "stupid mistakes" each time kept him from the top. But at the Nelson he led from the first round -- something no one has ever done — to nip Don Bies and win the $40,000 top prize.

Bies had battled with Masters champion Raymond Floyd for second place much of the day, but Floyd dropped back and Bies closed with a brief rush at Hayes. Hayes, of Oklahoma City, made only three bogeys in the 72 holes and finished at 11-under 273 with a closing round of two-under 69 over the 7,017-yard Preston Trails Golf Club course.

Bies, who started the day at six-under, took three strokes off of par Sunday for a final round of 68 and a 275 total worth $22,800 second prize money. Floyd, who won the Masters by a record-tying eight strokes, shot a 69 under threatening skies Sunday to finish with 277 and pick up $14,200. A stroke back in fourth place came Hale Irwin. Ben Crenshaw finished another stroke behind with 279.

Celts club Cavs for 2-0 series lead

John Havlicek, Dave Cowens and Charlie Scott kindled a fourth-period fast break that sparked the Boston Celtics to a 94-89 win over the Cleveland Cavaliers and a 2-0 lead in their NBA Eastern Conference championship series. The teams play game No. 3 Tuesday night in Cleveland.

Boston trailed, 71-68, heading into the final quarter, but after the teams traded baskets, Boston scored 11 unanswered points — mostly on the fast break.

The Celtics maintained their pressure defense, picking up five steals, until Dave Cowens fouled out with 1:57 remaining and Boston ahead 89-81. "We kept going low to Dave (Cowens) after Nate Thurmond fouled out," said White, the game's high scorer with 24 points. "When he (Thurmond) is not in the game, it is a different story. We change our game plan."

Cowens netted eight of his 15 points in the final period after Thurmond fouled out with 4:24 gone. Havlicek finished with 20 points and Scott with 16.

Bobby Smith netted 14 of his 16 points in the first half for Cleveland. Snyder added 16, Jim Cleamons had 14, Campy Russell had 11 and Thurmond 10 for the Cavs.

And in other sports news...

Sally Little holed out from a bunker to birdie the 18th hole and win her first title in five years as a pro in the Women's International Golf Tournament at Hilton Head Island, S.C. Little, from South Africa, picked up a $10,000 check by nipping Australia's Jan Stephenson 281-282 after finishing no better than third in 104 previous starts.

Jockey Braulio Baeza was released from a Long Island hospital Sunday after being thrown from his mount in the ninth race at Belmont Park Saturday . . . Catcher John Ellis of the Texas Rangers is expected to be out of action for six-eight weeks after suffering a dislocated left ankle and broken shin bone in Sunday's game at Boston.

Britain's John Fitzpatrick and Tom Walkinshaw upset the favored Porches to win the third round of the world sports car silhoutte championships in a 3.5 liter BMW at Silverstone, England . . . Meanwhile at Long Pond, Pa., Brian Redman kept his perfect record at Pocono International Raceway intact by driving a Chapparal Lola T332C to victory in the Sports Car Club-U.S. Auto Club Formula 5000 championship race.

AN UMPING FIRST. Seth, left, and Zack Taran, both of Duluth, Minn., are the first brother umpiring act working in the same crew in the history of professional baseball. They're working the 10-team Midwest League this year.

...Twin umpires!

Pro ballplayers seeing double...

Zack and Seth Taran are making baseball history this year, even though Seth has been at his job for less than a month.

The Tarans are the first known set of brothers in professional baseball history to umpire in the same crew. They work in the 10-team Class A Midwest League, which has clubs in Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois.

Zack, 27, is in his third year of minor league umpiring. He worked the 1974 season in the New York-Penn League and spent last year in the Western Carolina League.

Seth, 24, is a rookie, but was selected No. 1 in his umpire school class this spring.

"We're not a bit leery of the Taran brothers," says Barney Deery, head of umpires for the National Baseball Association.

"They both are excellent umpires, fine young men and they will represent our umpires' association very well." Deery said brothers have umpired previously in professional baseball, but never on the same crew.

The Tarans, who are from Duluth, Minn., don't expect any problems either. They've worked together in semi-pro games and although they have had their "typical brother spats," they believe they can stick together professionally.

"One thing we always remember," Seth said, "when we're on the baseball field working a game together, we know what our job is — and we do it."

Zack agrees.

"We always work well together," he said. "We're glad to be working closer to home this summer so our families can come and see us on weekends."

Even if they didn't get along, they would be forced to put aside any differences on the field because in the Midwest League the umpring crews are strictly two-man affairs — one behind the plate and the other on the bases.

Zack said a baseball teammate at the University of Minnesota-Duluth / Bob Davidson — got them interested in becoming umpires. Davidson, who lives two blocks from the Taran home in Duluth, umpired in the Midwest League in 1974 and now works in the Florida State League.

Zack approaches his job in a business-like manner and would like to reach the major leagues in another couple of years. If not, he'll seek an officiating job in the NBA.

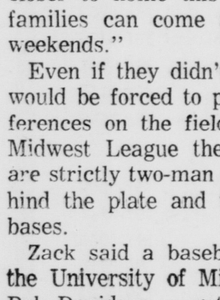

Both Zack and Seth officiate college basketball and football games in Minnesota during the fall and winter.

"Umpriing, to me, is just like another job and I intend to do the best I can and work my way up to the top," Zack said. "I'm looking forward to the expansion teams next year. There will be chances for some umpires to move up and I hope it will be me.

"The last two years in pro baseball have been very rewarding to me, and I only hope things continue well this year," he added.

Seth, who studied psychology and sociology at UM-Duluth, also has big league ambitions. He feels he is off to a good start with his high rating in umpire school, but said he was surprised by the honor.

"I don't really know what all they grade us on," he said, "but it's good to know the supervisors think that much of you."

Reds plaster hapless Cubs' 14-2

The Cincinnati Reds played "Home Run Derby" with Chicago Cub pitching again Sunday, knocking six out of Wrigley Field to slam the Northsiders 14-2 and move into first place in the National League's Western Division.

The Los Angeles Dodgers lost their second straight to the Philadelphia Phillies 10-3 and fell a half game behind the Reds.

It was the same old story for the Cubs and 21,536 sun soaked hopefuls at Wrigley Field.

The Reds ground up starting pitcher Ray Burris and reliever Oscar Zamora, taking a 10-0 lead at the end of three innings and safely locking away their 15th win against only 10 defeats.

While Cincinnati was using muscle for most of their runs they got their first on hustle and a pair of Cub blunders.

Pete Rose, the leading hitter in the National League, chopped his 43rd hit of the young season into centerfield to open the game and went to second on Burris' wild pitch.

Moments later Burris put another toss into the dirt and catcher Steve Swisher looked for it above when it was laying at his feet.

While Burris was running down the ball Rose shifted into high gear rounding third and slid head first under Swisher's glove for the opening run.

The Reds then went to their power to assure the Cubs' fifth loss in a row.

Tony Perez opened the third inning with a homer to left field, his first four-bagger of the year, and added his second in the fifth inning.

George Foster followed Perez with a home run on the carpet in center and after singles by Dave Concepcion and Bill Plummer and an intentional walk to Rose, Ken Griffey smacked a grand slam home run to complete the six-run inning.

Rose, who finished with a 3-for-3 day, added a home run in the fifth as did Dan Driessen, who powered a two-run shot out of the Friendly Confines.

The Cubs' offense consisted of seven hits, five off winner Pat Zachry, two of them by Bill Madlock who produced the only Chicago runs with a two-run homer in the eighth inning.

The entire Cincinnati series, in which Cub pitchers allowed 28 runs in the final two games, only highlighted the poor shape the Chicago staff is in.

Burris and Zamora, who gave up 10 hits and 10 runs between them, both had excellent control but their pitches were coming in straight and slow.

Paul Reuschel was effective until the Reds started hitting home runs off him.

Mike Garman threw three scoreless innings and Bruce Sutter finished the last inning of the game in his first appearance in a Cub uniform.

Sutter was called in from the Wichita Aeros where he was 1-1 and had fanned 17 men in 12 1/3 innings of relief work.

Sutter may be the pitcher the Cubs are looking for but that is doubtful.

The other teams in the National League know the Cubs are going to panic soon and be willing to unload two, or even three, quality players for someone to stem the flow of runs crossing the plate.

Rival General Managers are licking their lips while Cub GM E. R. "Salty" Saltwell's must surely be dry.

Harper's Roels qualifies for Juco nationals

Harper discus thrower Bob Roels took a second place with a toss of 143-6 at the Region IV track meet in Moline Saturday, qualifying for the junior college nationals at Houston in two weeks.

Roels, who was also fourth in the shot put, led his Hawk teammates to a fifth-place team finish with 47½ points in the 18-school field. The freshman weightman from Rolling Meadows High School will make the trip to Houston if the Harper athletic department can come up with the money to send him.

Hawk decathlon man Doug Gabbert was third with 5142 points, three-miler Mark Kaufman was third, and pole vaulter Grant McNerney finished third. Augie Ziccarelli was fourth in the steeplechase, the first time he had ever run the 3,000-meter event.

Sox triumph; Wood hurt

DETROIT — Wilbur Wood and Clay Carroll, who took over when the veteran knuckleballer was hit by a line drive on the left kneecap, combined on a five-hitter Sunday to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 4-2 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

Wood held a 2-0 lead — thanks to a two-run single by Buddy Bradford in the top of the sixth — when he was forced out of the game in the bottom of the sixth.

"He has a cracked or slightly shattered kneecap," Manager Paul Richards of Chicago reported after hearing the results of x-rays taken at a local hospital, where Wood was rushafter being whacked by a line drive off the bat of Ron LeFlore.

"He is going to be taken to Chicago to determine if an operation is necessary," Richards said. "Or to see if we can do anything to get him ready to pitch again this year. But it is doubtful, very doubtful."

LeFlore, who had collected the other two singles off Wood, stroked a line drive that caromed off the left-hander's left knee, sending him writhing in agony on the ground. Carroll came in and got the third out of the inning and held Detroit hitless until two were out in the ninth. He gave up a run in the seventh on two walks, a forceout and a sacrifice fly by Aurelio Rodriguez and Jason Thompson singled home a run in the ninth.

Bucky Dent doubled in the seventh and scored on a single by Pat Kelly that drove out Joe Coleman with his first defeat in three decisions. Ralph Garr slipped a double down the third base line off John Hiller to drive Kelly home and insure Wood's fourth victory against three losses.

Wood had started seven of Chicago's 18 games so far. He typically started over 40 games for the White Sox since his conversion from a relief pitcher in 1971. His 16-20 record a year ago was the first of the five in which he had not won 20 games or more.

Richards said he would choose between Pete Vuckovich, Jesse Jefferson, Francisco Barrios or "possibly Dave Hamilton — one of these" to replace Wood in the rotation.

State softball tournament debuts

Eight Northwest Suburban schools will host Sub-Regionals in Illinois girls' softball this week. Here are the area sites and pairings:

At Hersey — Arlington vs. Hersey this afternoon 4:30 with the winner playing Buffalo Grove on Wednesday.

At Elk Grove — Maine West vs. Maine North this afternoon at 4:00 with the winner playing Elk Grove on Wednesday. The games will be played on the park district field near Lively Junior High.

At Hoffman Estates — Conant vs. Hoffman Estates on Wednesday afternoon at 4:00.

At Palatine — Barrington vs. Palatine on Wednesday afternoon at 4:15.

At Prospect — Forest View vs. Prospect on Wednesday afternoon at 4:30.

At Rolling Meadows — Fremd vs. Rolling Meadows on Wednesday afternoon at 4:00 on the sports complex athletic field.

At Schaumburg — Lake Park vs. Schaumburg Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 at Collins Park near the Schaumburg Park District office.

At Wheeling — Stevenson vs. Wheeling on Wednesday afternoon at 4:00.

The local winners will advance to four regional sites where play will be conducted May 17, 18 and 20. The regional pairings look like this:

Barrington Regional — Palatine winner vs. Prospect winner and Rolling Meadows winner vs. Hersey winner.

Elgin Larkin Regional — Hoffman Estates winner vs. Elgin Larkin winner and Schaumburg winners vs. Dundee winner.

Elk Grove Regional — Niles East winner vs. Maine South winner and Niles West winners vs. Elk Grove winner.

Wheeling Regional — Wheeling winner vs. Glenbrook North winner and New Trier East winner vs. Lake Forest winner.

Maine West will be the only area school to host one of the eight softball sectionals May 24, 25 and 27.

The eight sectional winners will advance to the state finals in Peoria June 3-4.

singled and with two away, Rick Heredia reached on a two-base error. Both runners were subsequently sent in when Miller rifled a base hit down the right field line.

After Deerfield knotted the game at 2-2, the 'Cats went back to work in the fifth. Glenn Barry and Heredia singled and Miller picked up his third RBI of the day with another single. On an errant pickoff play at first then Heredia was able to scoot home.

The Warriors loaded the bases in the seventh with two outs but Mark Carlson, Deerfield all-state quarterback and the team's big gun in the baseball lineup, was mowed down by Pecka to end the game.

GLENBROOK SOUTH HAMMERS PROSPECT

Prospect proved to be more benevolent in a district giveaway at Glenbrook South, yielding to the Glenbrook North Spartans, 15-8.

While the Knights managed only four hits, they had an ample number of baserunners, compliments of 13 free passes by GBN pitchers and three Spartan errors.

Prospect pitching countered by yielding 19 hits and there were six Knight miscues. A nine-run Glenbrook outburst in the third proved to be the main measure of difference and Dave Rochelle, the first of three Prospect hurlers, sustained the loss.

Four of the Knight runs were forced across on walks. In the bottom of the third, after GBN had opened a 13-0 gap, Kevin Curtin and Chuck Weege walked and Keith Kallberg reached on a fielder's choice, loading the bases. Dave Wille and Mike Crnich then drew free rides, pushing in two, before Burt Thomas slammed out Prospect's first hit of the game — a double — to bring in two more tallies.

In the fifth Dave Thoma reached on an error, stole second and was singled in by Dave Landes. Curtin and Weebe walked again and Todd Doney and Wille then netted RBIs without wielding a bat.

Prospect's final run was produced on a walk, an infield hit by Curtin and a pair of errors.

The Glenbrook South tourney will continue this afternoon with the host Titans taking on Maine North. Other district confrontations today at 4 p.m. will include a Fremd-Hoffman Estates pairing on the Hawk diamond, a Buffalo Grove-Arlington clash at Hersey, a Forest View-Hersey meeting at the Falcon field and a Rolling Meadows-Driscoll encounter at Meadows.

Jim Murray

May 2, 1939—a national loss

It was just 37 years ago. The New York Yankees' train was swinging West in their first road trip of the season, and the catcher, Bill Dickey, was watching a terrible thing in the diner. The greatest first baseman in the annals of the game couldn't get the top off a ketchup bottle. Silently, Lou Gehrig handed it to the catcher to do it for him.

Only a few seasons before, this man had posed in a leopard skin trying out for the role of Tarzan in the movies bending crowbars for the photographers. Now, he was dropping spoons and spilling sugar.

On May 2, 1939, Lou Gehrig took himself out of a baseball lineup for first time in an incredible 2,130 games. He was never to hit, throw or catch a baseball again. On June 2, 1941, he died.

The tragedy of Lou Gehrig has been told in story, song and films. But never with the indepth personal touch of a new book out this week, "My Luke And I" by Mrs. Lou Gehrig and Joe Durso, which will open a rush of bittersweet memories.

I don't suppose I ever saw a better baseball player than Lou Gehrig. But he was more than a player. He was a symbol of indestructibility. He was Gibraltar in cleats, a mass of muscular power. He looked immortal. No pitcher on earth could get Lou Gehrig out consistently. You might do it once or twice. The third time he would hit the ball off the centerfield loudspeakers — and dent them.

It was a national loss, like a great redwood falling. People who had seen Lou Gehrig play couldn't believe it. He would be tearing phone books in half when he was 80.

The Yankees knew better. The baseball diagnosis was foolproof. The box score is the most reliable X ray in the world. It clearly showed Lou was missing 211 points from his career averages. His home-run count was way down. So baseball didn't need his blood count. He didn't field ground balls, he lifted them as if they were logs. He had to find a shower that was running. He couldn't turn one on by himself.

There were even subtler signs. At the victory celebration after the 1938 World Series, in which Gehrig hit no home runs for the first time in six Series, a teammate reported in some shock to Mrs. Gehrig, "You better look out for Lou. He's drinking triples!"

It was like hearing Snow White was doing a strip. Lou Gehrig didn't drink, chew, swear, or even go out with girls. Lou Gehrig ate pickled eels. He was a pipe-and-slippers guy. He rode roller-coasters by himself in his single days. He didn't go to bars. Lou Gehrig was Eagle Scout straight.

"My Luke And I" is not really a baseball story, it's a love story. It evokes an era as much as an aura. Eleanor Twitchell Gehrig had a great, good man — but only for six years. It was enough, she says. She would rather have those six with Lou Gehrig than 40 with anyone else. "I would not have traded two minutes of joy and grief with that man for two decades of anything with any other."

It is also the story of a woman's pluck, from the day she picked up a phone in New York's "21" Club and quietly put through a call to the Mayo Clinic to the day when she took a cab to the New York Public Library to look up "amyotrophic lateral sclerosis." She went to the library a bride — and came out a widow. Lou Gehrig doesn't have a league or a ballpark or a team named after him, he's got a disease named after him.

Still, it's not altogether a sad story. There are revealing sidelights to the real feud between Gehrig and Babe Ruth and how it grew. And there is the great dignity of a doomed man facing the final curveball, dug in and ready to swing as usual. He died smiling.

They say there's no pain with latersclerosis, but, of course, that's not true. It's the worst kind of pain, the kind no morphine can fix, to be progressively smothered to death, mummified, rendered motionless, speechless, and finally lifeless while all about you are helpless to do anything but look on.

I commend the book to you. Those of us who saw Gehrig know what a mighty force he was on the field. I remember an old baseball man, Fred Hoey, was asked once what he thought of Gary Cooper's portrayal of Gehrig, which some baseball purists thought too clumsy in the movie "Pride of the Yankees," and Fred answered, "Well, he was perfect for Lou after his illness. But nobody could play Lou Gehrig before his illness, anyway."

rebound edge.

The smaller men won the game for the Suburbs from the backcourt.

"Our game plan both nights," said winning coach Ron Feiereisel, "was to control the tempo of the game. We didn't want to get into a running game with that team.

"Friday night we trailed almost the entire game but we didn't make a mistake down the stretch and that's how we won it."

Saturday night the Suburban team nearly blew the City boys off the court, at one time building a lead of 12 points.

"I think we won the game," Judson said, "because we worked the ball well and got it inside to the big men."

Judson also pumped in 22 points himself to lead all scorers and worked a pair of sweet plays with Lavin, who used to attend Fremd before transferring to East Leyden, that ended with crip layups off an alley-opp pass.

"I was a little tight Friday night," Judson said, "but I was pleased with the way I played tonight."

The capacity crowd in Buffalo Grove's steaming gym backed Judson well, too.

"I think they got behind me because we played here during the year," Judson said.

The guards fed teammates Grunwald and Bresnahan inside and both hit for 14 points.

Grunwald and the other Suburban big men did a good job on Morgan Park's Cobb, holding him to 10 points although he played more than any other All-Star on either team.

"We did an outstanding job on defense," Feiereisel said. "We got help from the weakside, especially from Krafcisin, and kept the ball away from Cobb well."

Bresnahan broke out of a shooting slump and later hit two key free throws to ice the game. He will join Judson and Cobb at Illinois next year.

Which should make Illinois coach Lou Henson happy.

Henson was in the stands for both games and if he was holding a grudge because Colescott got away he saw that Rob Judson can take control and run a ballclub.

He's got to be happy he'll be running Illinois next year and not Michigan State.

Paape vaults 14-4 at Hawk Relays

Mustangs win at Crystal Lake

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

Joe Vitton, the Rolling Meadows track coach, used a lot of tape Saturday and managed to hold his team together long enough for a narrow victory over host Crystal Lake in the annual Crystal Lake Relays.

"With all the walking wounded we've got, I really didn't expect the kind of performance we turned in," said Vitton, whose Mustangs racked up 148 points to Crystal Lake's 139½.

Arlington finished sixth with 54 points.

"It's like I told the kids on the bus after the meet," continued Vitton. "I've never been more proud of a team, especially since we only really got a half-effort from (Rick) Sutton."

Sutton, a Mustang junior, has been hampered by foot problems lately, but still managed to win the 100-dash in :10.2, just shading teammate Dave Boursaw. Arlington's Steve Hadley was fifth.

Rolling Meadows also got a first-place effort from Dave Thompson, who threw the discus 158-1, his personal best and the second-farthest heave of any Mid-Suburban athlete this season. Rich Huber of the Mustangs was second with a toss of 146-7.

"We just found out that Huber has a cracked vertebra," said Vitton, who indicated that Huber would be able to throw the disc but not the shot in the conference and district meets coming up.

With high jumper Jeff Lund bothered by a ripped muscle in his jumping leg and pole vaulter Mike Quinnett out for the season with torn cartilage, the Mustangs are definitely at a disadvantage, especially in trying to overhaul defending MSL champion Forest View.

"The other kids are doing a heck of a job," Vitton said. "We'll just try to hold them together for two more weeks."

Meadows got a good day out of junior Jeff Schrock, who was third in the high jump (6-0) and fifth in the disc (134-7). Thompson managed a second in the shot (49-3¼) and miler Tom Choice ran third with a 4:33.8. Fred Kocian took a second in the low hurdles with a :40.0.

The victory was the first in any major meet for a Rolling Meadows track team.

"It comes at a nice time after we've finished second in just about every other meet this year," Vitton said.

Arlington's mile relay team was second in 3:31.6 and the Cards' 880-relay squad was third in 1:34.5. Milers Jim Lear (4:39.2) and Mike Fischer (4:39.8) were fourth and fifth.

Dave Paape cleared his outdoor best in the pole vault, but New Trier East won the mile relay and with it the first-place trophy at the first Hoffman Hawk Relays Saturday.

Paape, Hoffman's versatile senior, reached 14-4 for a win and also managed a 6-0 effort in the high jump for second place behind Schaumburg's Scott Mielke (6-2).

It was the second time Paape had made 14-4, the first time outdoors. It ranks him second in the state behind Bloom's Mike McCrindle.

Schaumburg scored 80 points and finished a very close third in the meet, which was anybody's ballgame right up to the final event. Only Hoffman, which ended up with 50 points, had no chance to win going into the mile relay. New Trier had 92 points and DeKalb 86 when it was over.

Strong performances were turned in by Schaumburg's Brad Crawford, Mike Christy, and Jeff Ways. Crawford, who will almost certainly be the top-seeded discus thrower in next week's MSL meet, threw 156-6 for a first and had enough for a second in the shot (49-2 3/4) and a fourth in the high hurdles.

Christy led the Saxons to seconds in a pair of relays, took a third in the 220 (:23.0), and eked out a win in the long jump over teammate Jim Senese. Christy went 20-4¼ and Senese 20-2½. It was Senese's best jump ever.

The sophomore Ways outkicked everybody else in the 440 and finished strong with a :51.7, defeating top-seeded Shawn Trenholm of New Trier.

Palatine's Rich Falbo won the high hurdles (:15.3) and came back for a personal best of :39.4 to win the 330-lows as the Pirates scored 88½ points for second place behind McHenry in the Woodstock Invite Saturday.

Falbo lowered his own school record in the lows and also anchored Palatine's mile relay team to a win in 3:35, despite the fact that the Pirates dropped the baton.

Freshman Dave Kennedy gave Palatine another first place with an impressive :51.9 in the 440, just beating teammate Kirk Morris (:52.3).

Pirate sophomore miler Tom Johnson won in 4:35.4 after running second in the two-mile in 9:53.5. High jumper Ken Reid was second with a 6-2 effort.

Tennis roundup

Warriors third in invite

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Tennis Editor

Maine West showed the balance of the Central Suburban League tennis race Saturday when they took third place in their own invitational.

Elmwood Park and Niles North tied for the championship with nine points and the Warriors followed with eight and one-half.

"Niles North is 4-0 in the conference," said Maine West coach Roger King, "and we're 0-4. Yet they only beat us by half a point.

"We had close matches all day and we needed one win someplace to win the whole thing but we didn't get it."

The race for the team title was very close, with Loyola and Lake Park right behind Maine West with eight points.

The Warriors were paced by singles player John Minardi and the doubles team of Mike Hand and Tim Keenley.

Minardi swept through his first two opponents in straight sets before falling 6-0, 6-1 to Elmwood Park's Greg Zydiak, the eventual singles champion.

Hand and Keenley also won their first two matches before falling in the semi-finals to a Lake Park outfit, 7-6, 6-1.

Rolling Meadows captured the Addison Trail Invitational with 39 points while Conant was third with 17.

Singles player Brad Weber and the doubles teams of Jeff Corrado and Kent Walker and Jeff and Rod Jay all won titles.

Conant's Bob Schuckles won the second singles title with a 13-3 decision of Meadows' Dave Bohac.

Palatine made up a rain out with Wheeling, whipping the Wildcats 5-0.

Mike Esenberg recorded a 6-0, 6-0 whitewash in his first singles match and every other Palatine entry won their matches in straight sets.

"We played well yesterday," said Palatine coach John Carlson. "We took two days off last week and the rest really helped the kids. We'd practiced every day since the end of February and they needed the time off."

Prospect traveled south to Normal for the University High School Invitational and returned with a fifth place finish.

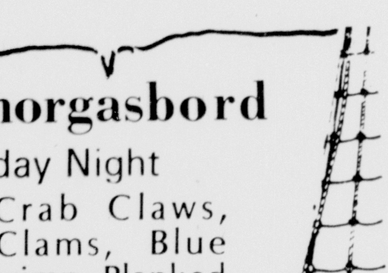

The Knights' third doubles team of Jim Bryja and Paul Mallon advanced the furthest for Prospect, reaching the final round before falling.

The second doubles team of Dave Hughson and Steve Chelberg reached the semi-finals before losing.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

Jim Murray

May 2, 1939—a national loss

It was just 37 years ago. The New York Yankees' train was swinging West in their first road trip of the season, and the catcher, Bill Dickey, was watching a terrible thing in the diner. The greatest first baseman in the annals of the game couldn't get the top off a ketchup bottle. Silently, Lou Gehrig handed it to the catcher to do it for him.

Only a few seasons before, this man had posed in a leopard skin trying out for the role of Tarzan in the movies bending crowbars for the photographers. Now, he was dropping spoons and spilling sugar.

On May 2, 1939, Lou Gehrig took himself out of a baseball lineup for first time in an incredible 2,130 games. He was never to hit, throw or catch a baseball again. On June 2, 1941, he died.

The tragedy of Lou Gehrig has been told in story, song and films. But never with the indepth personal touch of a new book out this week, "My Luke And I" by Mrs. Lou Gehrig and Joe Durso, which will open a rush of bittersweet memories.

I don't suppose I ever saw a better baseball player than Lou Gehrig. But he was more than a player. He was a symbol of indestructibility. He was Gibraltar in cleats, a mass of muscular power. He looked immortal. No pitcher on earth could get Lou Gehrig out consistently. You might do it once or twice. The third time he would hit the ball off the centerfield loudspeakers — and dent them.

It was a national loss, like a great redwood falling. People who had seen Lou Gehrig play couldn't believe it. He would be tearing phone books in half when he was 80.

The Yankees knew better. The baseball diagnosis was foolproof. The box score is the most reliable X ray in the world. It clearly showed Lou was missing 211 points from his career averages. His home-run count was way down. So baseball didn't need his blood count. He didn't field ground balls, he lifted them as if they were logs. He had to find a shower that was running. He couldn't turn one on by himself.

There were even subtler signs. At the victory celebration after the 1938 World Series, in which Gehrig hit no home runs for the first time in six Series, a teammate reported in some shock to Mrs. Gehrig, "You better look out for Lou. He's drinking triples!"

It was like hearing Snow White was doing a strip. Lou Gehrig didn't drink, chew, swear, or even go out with girls. Lou Gehrig ate pickled eels. He was a pipe-and-slippers guy. He rode roller-coasters by himself in his single days. He didn't go to bars. Lou Gehrig was Eagle Scout straight.

"My Luke And I" is not really a baseball story, it's a love story. It evokes an era as much as an aura. Eleanor Twitchell Gehrig had a great, good man — but only for six years. It was enough, she says. She would rather have those six with Lou Gehrig than 40 with anyone else. "I would not have traded two minutes of joy and grief with that man for two decades of anything with any other."

It is also the story of a woman's pluck, from the day she picked up a phone in New York's "21" Club and quietly put through a call to the Mayo Clinic to the day when she took a cab to the New York Public Library to look up "amyotrophic lateral sclerosis." She went to the library a bride — and came out a widow. Lou Gehrig doesn't have a league or a ballpark or a team named after him, he's got a disease named after him.

Still, it's not altogether a sad story. There are revealing sidelights to the real feud between Gehrig and Babe Ruth and how it grew. And there is the great dignity of a doomed man facing the final curveball, dug in and ready to swing as usual. He died smiling.

They say there's no pain with latersclerosis, but, of course, that's not true. It's the worst kind of pain, the kind no morphine can fix, to be progressively smothered to death, mummified, rendered motionless, speechless, and finally lifeless while all about you are helpless to do anything but look on.

I commend the book to you. Those of us who saw Gehrig know what a mighty force he was on the field. I remember an old baseball man, Fred Hoey, was asked once what he thought of Gary Cooper's portrayal of Gehrig, which some baseball purists thought too clumsy in the movie "Pride of the Yankees," and Fred answered, "Well, he was perfect for Lou after his illness. But nobody could play Lou Gehrig before his illness, anyway."

Judson superb in Suburban win

rebound edge.

The smaller men won the game for the Suburbs from the backcourt.

"Our game plan both nights," said winning coach Ron Feiereisel, "was to control the tempo of the game. We didn't want to get into a running game with that team.

"Friday night we trailed almost the entire game but we didn't make a mistake down the stretch and that's how we won it."

Saturday night the Suburban team nearly blew the City boys off the court, at one time building a lead of 12 points.

"I think we won the game," Judson said, "because we worked the ball well and got it inside to the big men."

Judson also pumped in 22 points himself to lead all scorers and worked a pair of sweet plays with Lavin, who used to attend Fremd before transferring to East Leyden, that ended with crip layups off an alley-opp pass.

"I was a little tight Friday night," Judson said, "but I was pleased with the way I played tonight."

The capacity crowd in Buffalo Grove's steaming gym backed Judson well, too.

"I think they got behind me because we played here during the year," Judson said.

The guards fed teammates Grunwald and Bresnahan inside and both hit for 14 points.

Grunwald and the other Suburban big men did a good job on Morgan Park's Cobb, holding him to 10 points although he played more than any other All-Star on either team.

"We did an outstanding job on defense," Feiereisel said. "We got help from the weakside, especially from Krafcisin, and kept the ball away from Cobb well."

Bresnahan broke out of a shooting slump and later hit two key free throws to ice the game. He will join Judson and Cobb at Illinois next year.

Which should make Illinois coach Lou Henson happy.

Henson was in the stands for both games and if he was holding a grudge because Colescott got away he saw that Rob Judson can take control and run a ballclub.

He's got to be happy he'll be running Illinois next year and not Michigan State.

Paape vaults 14-4 at Hawk Relays

Mustangs win at Crystal Lake

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

Joe Vitton, the Rolling Meadows track coach, used a lot of tape Saturday and managed to hold his team together long enough for a narrow victory over host Crystal Lake in the annual Crystal Lake Relays.

"With all the walking wounded we've got, I really didn't expect the kind of performance we turned in," said Vitton, whose Mustangs racked up 148 points to Crystal Lake's 139½.

Arlington finished sixth with 54 points.

"It's like I told the kids on the bus after the meet," continued Vitton. "I've never been more proud of a team, especially since we only really got a half-effort from (Rick) Sutton."

Sutton, a Mustang junior, has been hampered by foot problems lately, but still managed to win the 100-dash in :10.2, just shading teammate Dave Boursaw. Arlington's Steve Hadley was fifth.

Rolling Meadows also got a first-place effort from Dave Thompson, who threw the discus 158-1, his personal best and the second-farthest heave of any Mid-Suburban athlete this season. Rich Huber of the Mustangs was second with a toss of 146-7.

"We just found out that Huber has a cracked vertebra," said Vitton, who indicated that Huber would be able to throw the disc but not the shot in the conference and district meets coming up.

With high jumper Jeff Lund bothered by a ripped muscle in his jumping leg and pole vaulter Mike Quinnett out for the season with torn cartilage, the Mustangs are definitely at a disadvantage, especially in trying to overhaul defending MSL champion Forest View.

"The other kids are doing a heck of a job," Vitton said. "We'll just try to hold them together for two more weeks."

Meadows got a good day out of junior Jeff Schrock, who was third in the high jump (6-0) and fifth in the disc (134-7). Thompson managed a second in the shot (49-3¼) and miler Tom Choice ran third with a 4:33.8. Fred Kocian took a second in the low hurdles with a :40.0.

The victory was the first in any major meet for a Rolling Meadows track team.

"It comes at a nice time after we've finished second in just about every other meet this year," Vitton said.

Arlington's mile relay team was second in 3:31.6 and the Cards' 880-relay squad was third in 1:34.5. Milers Jim Lear (4:39.2) and Mike Fischer (4:39.8) were fourth and fifth.

Dave Paape cleared his outdoor best in the pole vault, but New Trier East won the mile relay and with it the first-place trophy at the first Hoffman Hawk Relays Saturday.

Paape, Hoffman's versatile senior, reached 14-4 for a win and also managed a 6-0 effort in the high jump for second place behind Schaumburg's Scott Mielke (6-2).

It was the second time Paape had made 14-4, the first time outdoors. It ranks him second in the state behind Bloom's Mike McCrindle.

Schaumburg scored 80 points and finished a very close third in the meet, which was anybody's ballgame right up to the final event. Only Hoffman, which ended up with 50 points, had no chance to win going into the mile relay. New Trier had 92 points and DeKalb 86 when it was over.

Strong performances were turned in by Schaumburg's Brad Crawford, Mike Christy, and Jeff Ways. Crawford, who will almost certainly be the top-seeded discus thrower in next week's MSL meet, threw 156-6 for a first and had enough for a second in the shot (49-2 3/4) and a fourth in the high hurdles.

Christy led the Saxons to seconds in a pair of relays, took a third in the 220 (:23.0), and eked out a win in the long jump over teammate Jim Senese. Christy went 20-4¼ and Senese 20-2½. It was Senese's best jump ever.

The sophomore Ways outkicked everybody else in the 440 and finished strong with a :51.7, defeating top-seeded Shawn Trenholm of New Trier.

Palatine's Rich Falbo won the high hurdles (:15.3) and came back for a personal best of :39.4 to win the 330-lows as the Pirates scored 88½ points for second place behind McHenry in the Woodstock Invite Saturday.

Falbo lowered his own school record in the lows and also anchored Palatine's mile relay team to a win in 3:35, despite the fact that the Pirates dropped the baton.

Freshman Dave Kennedy gave Palatine another first place with an impressive :51.9 in the 440, just beating teammate Kirk Morris (:52.3).

Pirate sophomore miler Tom Johnson won in 4:35.4 after running second in the two-mile in 9:53.5. High jumper Ken Reid was second with a 6-2 effort.

Tennis roundup

Warriors third in invite

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Tennis Editor

Maine West showed the balance of the Central Suburban League tennis race Saturday when they took third place in their own invitational.

Elmwood Park and Niles North tied for the championship with nine points and the Warriors followed with eight and one-half.

"Niles North is 4-0 in the conference," said Maine West coach Roger King, "and we're 0-4. Yet they only beat us by half a point.

"We had close matches all day and we needed one win someplace to win the whole thing but we didn't get it."

The race for the team title was very close, with Loyola and Lake Park right behind Maine West with eight points.

The Warriors were paced by singles player John Minardi and the doubles team of Mike Hand and Tim Keenley.

Minardi swept through his first two opponents in straight sets before falling 6-0, 6-1 to Elmwood Park's Greg Zydiak, the eventual singles champion.

Hand and Keenley also won their first two matches before falling in the semi-finals to a Lake Park outfit, 7-6, 6-1.

Rolling Meadows captured the Addison Trail Invitational with 39 points while Conant was third with 17.

Singles player Brad Weber and the doubles teams of Jeff Corrado and Kent Walker and Jeff and Rod Jay all won titles.

Conant's Bob Schuckles won the second singles title with a 13-3 decision of Meadows' Dave Bohac.

Palatine made up a rain out with Wheeling, whipping the Wildcats 5-0.

Mike Esenberg recorded a 6-0, 6-0 whitewash in his first singles match and every other Palatine entry won their matches in straight sets.

"We played well yesterday," said Palatine coach John Carlson. "We took two days off last week and the rest really helped the kids. We'd practiced every day since the end of February and they needed the time off."

Prospect traveled south to Normal for the University High School Invitational and returned with a fifth place finish.

The Knights' third doubles team of Jim Bryja and Paul Mallon advanced the furthest for Prospect, reaching the final round before falling.

The second doubles team of Dave Hughson and Steve Chelberg reached the semi-finals before losing.

LAUBACH LESSONS ARE free. When Hafsa Moftha, left, visiting from Egypt, offered to pay her teacher, Joy Sharav of Des Plaines, Joy suggested, "When you learn, you teach someone else. That will pay me." Becoming a tutor last July, Joy now has three foreign-born students.

She teaches English to a class of one

by ELEANOR RIVES

A certain spice has been added to Joy Sharav's life, and it has an international flavor.

Joy is the type of person who refuses to be bored. If she feels boredom creeping up, she runs, not walks, to the nearest antidote.

That's what happened last summer. She checked out various suggestions of the Volunteer Service Bureau of Arlington Heights, but somehow they missed the mark. Then she heard of the Laubach Literacy program. It was as if a switch had been flipped.

"It clicked," she said. "I knew this was what I wanted to do."

The Laubach method is a simple system of teaching English on a one-to-one basis, using Laubach workbooks and materials. Originally it was intended for American-born illiterates. It has become an important tool for teaching English to the foreign-born.

JOY COULDN'T wait for a local tutor-training program to begin so she traveled all the way to south Chicago several times — an hour's ride each way — to complete the 15-hour course and become certified. She learned not only how to teach, but how to establish rapport with the student; not only what to say, but what not to say. Last July, on the day following certification, she began teaching her first student, Khiet Pham Thi, a middle-aged Vietnamese woman who had been in the United States only two weeks.

For six weeks, Joy taught with a group that meets in the Des Plaines Library. Another of her students was Teresa Garcia, a Mexican woman, mother of five children. Each Saturday, Teresa and three of her children walked two miles each way to attend the library classes.

WHEN THE Elk Grove Township Literacy Center, directed by Marilyn Ruben, was established, Joy switched her services there for a time. Now she teaches her students either in her own home or theirs, week nights and weekends, also substituting at the center when necessary. All of which is free for the students, volunteer for Joy, and fills most of her time other that the nine hours a day she works as an accountant.

Joy supplements the Laubach books with correlated reading books, photographs, magazine pictures, dictionaries, a Scrabble board and a bag of objects — a bird, apple, pan, snake — anything she can get her hands on. Khiet has enthusiastically served as model to represent such actions as "stand up," "sit down," "drink," "eat," and "carry" while Joy snaps the pictures.

Khiet (pronounced Kick) and Teresa are not only Joy's students but her good friends. So is Hafsa Moftha, a young woman from Cairo, Egypt, here on a visit. She began Laubach training with Joy last October.

"We have so much fun together," said Joy. "Hafsa and I went to an all-Indian dinner in the city and she also invited me to her sister's home in Arlington Heights for dinner. Have you ever had an Egyptian dinner? There's a great quantity of food — delicious! I really enjoy stuffed grape leaves."

Joy now goes to Teresa's house to teach her. She was deeply touched with the gift Teresa made her for Christmas — a little Mexican doll which doubles as a toaster cover.

Khiet — well, Khiet, with her weekly gift of bananas, is something else. Joy has helped her learn food names by shopping with her, has taken her to visit an ill friend, to a gift shop, to an eye doctor for glasses. She carries a little dictionary wherever she goes.

Hafsa will soon be going back to her native lands, and that will leave an aching void in Joy's life. But many other eager, foreign-born newcomers are waiting to fill it. She would like to include an underprivileged American who needs training in language.

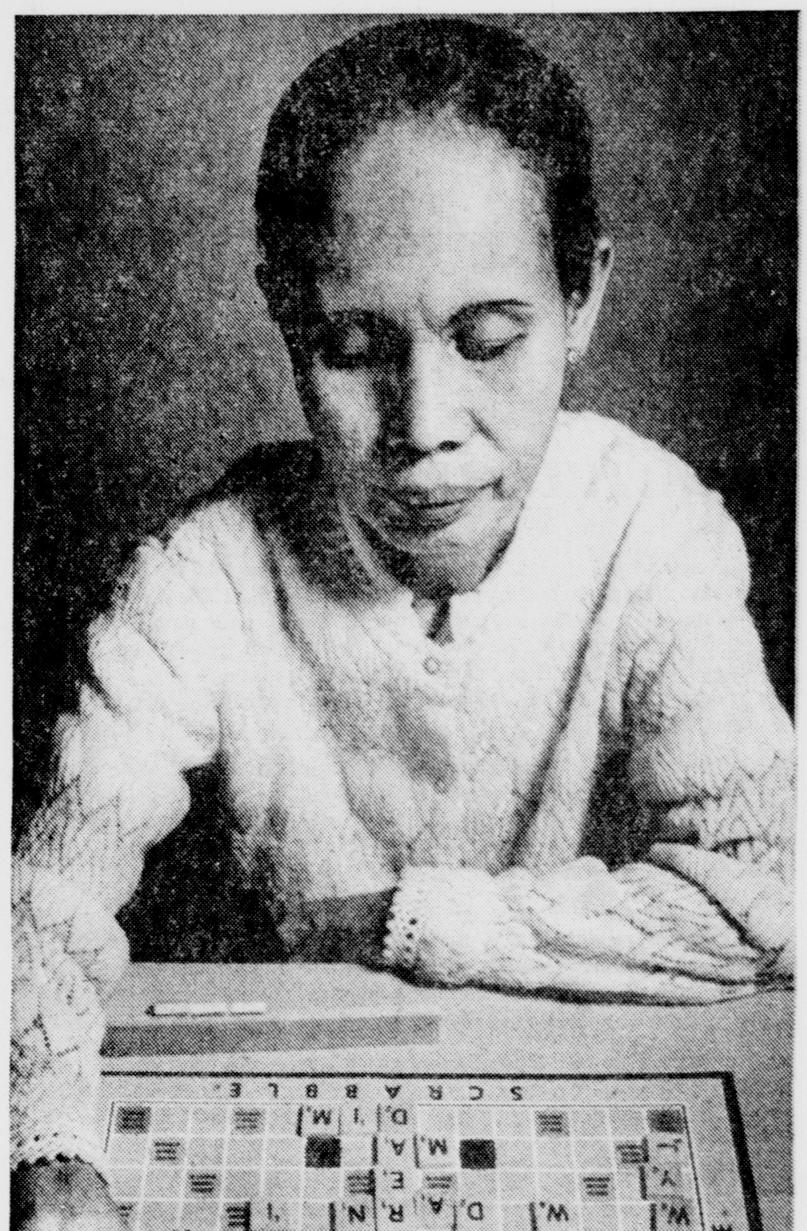

"This type of volunteer work is so rewarding," she said. "I teach, but I learn, too — little Spanish phrases, Arabic words. I would love to learn enough Arabic to teach Americans so they might have some understanding of what a foreign-born person goes through trying to learn English."

Joy Sharav has taken more than enough additional study to qualify her as a trainer of Laubach teachers, and she does her part as tutor-training sessions. But she enjoys most the personal contact of teaching foreign-born persons individually.

They, in turn, love her. Once when Joy was ill, Khiet sent her the following note, a priceless treasure:

"By telephone I know you sick; I sad. I want to visit you urgent, pour milk make tea help you. Hear telephone two times no visit! Sad I stay at home. Have big wish for Joy get well fast. Are you allwright (sic), I wish you get well fast.

"Love, your student Khiet Pham now.

A SCRABBLE BOARD becomes a learning tool for Khiet Pham Thi of Vietnam, Joy Sharav's first student and good friend.

Want to teach or learn Laubach?

There are four Laubach Literacy Centers in the northwest suburbs, all offering free English language training to foreign-born people.

In Hanover Park, classes are held Tuesday evenings at Christ United Presbyterian Church, 6900 Barrington Rd.; in Palatine, Monday evenings at Christ Lutheran Church, 41 S. Rohlwing Rd.; in Elk Grove Village, Thursday evenings at the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.; and in Des Plaines, at the Public Library, Graceland and Thacker on Saturday afternoons. In June, July and August, there will be Thursday evening classes at the Des Plaines library.

IF YOU WISH TO BE A STUDENT:

In Hatover Park area, call Pat Pearsoo, 837-7584.

In Palatioe area, call Lyin Brewer, 358-6864.

In Elk Grove area, call Jean Payne, 593-6955.

In Des Plaines area, go directly to the Laubach session at the library any Saturday afternoon, starting at 1:30 p.m.

IF YOU WISH TO BE A TEACHER:

Fifteen hours of training are required for one to become a qualified Laubach teacher. A total cost of about $10 is involved, including books, membership dues, duplicated materials, etc.

Plans are now being formulated for teacher training workshops at both the Elk Grove Township Center and the Hanover Park Center, dates to be announced. For further information, readers may call Marilyn Ruben, 437-7442, or Adrienne Marcus, 893-1917, of the Elk Grove center; or Pat Pearson, 837-7584, of the Hanover Park center.

Certified Laubach tutors may teach at any center that is convenient for them, or may make arrangements to teach in their own home or that of the student.

Pressing always done on wrong side of fabric

Dear Eunice Farmer,

When constructing a knit garment, I am in doubt about the pressing of seams. When I press on the right side of the knitn I am getting a shiny ironed look and the impressing of the seams shows. Pattern instructions don't tell us how to press. I am a complete beginner. — Joyce S.

Dear Joyce,

I have never recommended pressing on the right side of ANY fabric. Always press on the wrong side, lightly at first, most often with the steam iron. If more pressing is necessary, you may use a dampened press cloth and a slightly warmer iron.

With any heavier pressing such as you will have if you use a dampened press cloth, you must slip a strip of brown paper under the seams to prevent an impression of this seam showing on the right side of your garment. Once you get accustomed to this, you will always keep a strip of brown paper handy to your pressing area.

Unless you are a real pro with your sewing, it is usually advisable to take your finished garment to a professional for the final pressing. This can often make the difference between a garment that has that "loving hands of home look" and one that is purchased. Pressing is one of the most important details of any garment.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

Do you need a zig-zag machine stitch to do the lettuce-leaf edging that is seen on factory made garments? — Mrs. B. E. M.

Dear Mrs. B. E. M.,

Yes, you must have a machine that has a zig-zag stitch or attachment. Remember, the stitches must be close together and usually the bite or width of stitch is rather narrow. Also, remember that your fabric must either be a knit that stretches or must be cut on the bias.

Sew simple

by Eunice Farmer

Lettuce-leaf edging can be simple or difficult, depending on your sewing machine. If your machine literally grabs and devours the fabric into the needle hole on the plate, you must take an extra step. You can press the edge of the fabric by turning over about one-half inch in a single fold. Then do your edging on the double layer of fabric, stretching like mad as you stitch. The stretching is what produces the curly edge.

After you have completed the edges, go back and cut away the excess fabric, and you will have a beautifully finished edging. This edging is done on scarfs, hems, belts and ties. Just look at ready-to-wear for ideas. It's fun to do the same details used by professionals.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I have learned so much from your column. You have encouraged me to keep trying new things. In an earlier column you mentioned using buttonhole twist for gathering stitches. What is this type of thread and how do you use it? Sorry to ask such an elementary question, but perhaps I'm not the only "dummy." — Mrs. R. S. G.

Dear Mrs. R. S. G.,

Sorry, but I suppose once in awhile I take a little too much for granted. I was sure that even the smallest towns carried buttonhole twist.

For those of you who aren't aware of it, it is a heavier thread that is especially used for top stitching woolens or heavier fabrics. It's also used when zippers are applied by hand or when sewing on buttons on coats and jackets where a heavier thread is necessary for strength.

Because of the strength of it, I have recommended using it on your bobbin when stitching two rows of stitches that will be pulled up for a gathered effect. The most maddening thing I know of is to pull yards of fabric up for gathers and then, before you are finished, having the thread break. Because of buttonhole twist's extra strength, it will not break, thus saving a few unhappy moments.

Perhaps the next time you visit a place where a large variety of sewing notions are available, it would be wise to pick up a couple of spools of buttonhole twist for future use. Today, most of the buttonhole twist is polyester; formerly, it was always made of silk. The strength will not be affected by the different fibers.

suburban living

LAUBACH LESSONS ARE free. When Hafsa Moftha, left, visiting from Egypt, offered to pay her teacher, Joy Sharav of Des Plaines, Joy suggested, "When you learn, you teach someone else. That will pay me." Becoming a tutor last July, Joy now has three foreign-born students.

She teaches English to a class of one

by ELEANOR RIVES

A certain spice has been added to Joy Sharav's life, and it has an international flavor.

Joy is the type of person who refuses to be bored. If she feels boredom creeping up, she runs, not walks, to the nearest antidote.

That's what happened last summer. She checked out various suggestions of the Volunteer Service Bureau of Arlington Heights, but somehow they missed the mark. Then she heard of the Laubach Literacy program. It was as if a switch had been flipped.

"It clicked," she said. "I knew this was what I wanted to do."

The Laubach method is a simple system of teaching English on a one-to-one basis, using Laubach workbooks and materials. Originally it was intended for American-born illiterates. It has become an important tool for teaching English to the foreign-born.

JOY COULDN'T wait for a local tutor-training program to begin so she traveled all the way to south Chicago several times — an hour's ride each way — to complete the 15-hour course and become certified. She learned not only how to teach, but how to establish rapport with the student; not only what to say, but what not to say. Last July, on the day following certification, she began teaching her first student, Khiet Pham Thi, a middle-aged Vietnamese woman who had been in the United States only two weeks.

For six weeks, Joy taught with a group that meets in the Des Plaines Library. Another of her students was Teresa Garcia, a Mexican woman, mother of five children. Each Saturday, Teresa and three of her children walked two miles each way to attend the library classes.

WHEN THE Elk Grove Township Literacy Center, directed by Marilyn Ruben, was established, Joy switched her services there for a time. Now she teaches her students either in her own home or theirs, week nights and weekends, also substituting at the center when necessary. All of which is free for the students, volunteer for Joy, and fills most of her time other that the nine hours a day she works as an accountant.

Joy supplements the Laubach books with correlated reading books, photographs, magazine pictures, dictionaries, a Scrabble board and a bag of objects — a bird, apple, pan, snake — anything she can get her hands on. Khiet has enthusiastically served as model to represent such actions as "stand up," "sit down," "drink," "eat," and "carry" while Joy snaps the pictures.

Khiet (pronounced Kick) and Teresa are not only Joy's students but her good friends. So is Hafsa Moftha, a young woman from Cairo, Egypt, here on a visit. She began Laubach training with Joy last October.

"We have so much fun together," said Joy. "Hafsa and I went to an all-Indian dinner in the city and she also invited me to her sister's home in Arlington Heights for dinner. Have you ever had an Egyptian dinner? There's a great quantity of food — delicious! I really enjoy stuffed grape leaves."

Joy now goes to Teresa's house to teach her. She was deeply touched with the gift Teresa made her for Christmas — a little Mexican doll which doubles as a toaster cover.

Khiet — well, Khiet, with her weekly gift of bananas, is something else. Joy has helped her learn food names by shopping with her, has taken her to visit an ill friend, to a gift shop, to an eye doctor for glasses. She carries a little dictionary wherever she goes.

Hafsa will soon be going back to her native lands, and that will leave an aching void in Joy's life. But many other eager, foreign-born newcomers are waiting to fill it. She would like to include an underprivileged American who needs training in language.

"This type of volunteer work is so rewarding," she said. "I teach, but I learn, too — little Spanish phrases, Arabic words. I would love to learn enough Arabic to teach Americans so they might have some understanding of what a foreign-born person goes through trying to learn English."

Joy Sharav has taken more than enough additional study to qualify her as a trainer of Laubach teachers, and she does her part as tutor-training sessions. But she enjoys most the personal contact of teaching foreign-born persons individually.

They, in turn, love her. Once when Joy was ill, Khiet sent her the following note, a priceless treasure:

"By telephone I know you sick; I sad. I want to visit you urgent, pour milk make tea help you. Hear telephone two times no visit! Sad I stay at home. Have big wish for Joy get well fast. Are you allwright (sic), I wish you get well fast.

"Love, your student Khiet Pham now.

A SCRABBLE BOARD becomes a learning tool for Khiet Pham Thi of Vietnam, Joy Sharav's first student and good friend.

Want to teach or learn Laubach?

There are four Laubach Literacy Centers in the northwest suburbs, all offering free English language training to foreign-born people.

In Hanover Park, classes are held Tuesday evenings at Christ United Presbyterian Church, 6900 Barrington Rd.; in Palatine, Monday evenings at Christ Lutheran Church, 41 S. Rohlwing Rd.; in Elk Grove Village, Thursday evenings at the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.; and in Des Plaines, at the Public Library, Graceland and Thacker on Saturday afternoons. In June, July and August, there will be Thursday evening classes at the Des Plaines library.

IF YOU WISH TO BE A STUDENT:

In Hatover Park area, call Pat Pearsoo, 837-7584.

In Palatioe area, call Lyin Brewer, 358-6864.

In Elk Grove area, call Jean Payne, 593-6955.

In Des Plaines area, go directly to the Laubach session at the library any Saturday afternoon, starting at 1:30 p.m.

IF YOU WISH TO BE A TEACHER:

Fifteen hours of training are required for one to become a qualified Laubach teacher. A total cost of about $10 is involved, including books, membership dues, duplicated materials, etc.

Plans are now being formulated for teacher training workshops at both the Elk Grove Township Center and the Hanover Park Center, dates to be announced. For further information, readers may call Marilyn Ruben, 437-7442, or Adrienne Marcus, 893-1917, of the Elk Grove center; or Pat Pearson, 837-7584, of the Hanover Park center.

Certified Laubach tutors may teach at any center that is convenient for them, or may make arrangements to teach in their own home or that of the student.

Pressing always done on wrong side of fabric

Dear Eunice Farmer,

When constructing a knit garment, I am in doubt about the pressing of seams. When I press on the right side of the knitn I am getting a shiny ironed look and the impressing of the seams shows. Pattern instructions don't tell us how to press. I am a complete beginner. — Joyce S.

Dear Joyce,

I have never recommended pressing on the right side of ANY fabric. Always press on the wrong side, lightly at first, most often with the steam iron. If more pressing is necessary, you may use a dampened press cloth and a slightly warmer iron.

With any heavier pressing such as you will have if you use a dampened press cloth, you must slip a strip of brown paper under the seams to prevent an impression of this seam showing on the right side of your garment. Once you get accustomed to this, you will always keep a strip of brown paper handy to your pressing area.

Unless you are a real pro with your sewing, it is usually advisable to take your finished garment to a professional for the final pressing. This can often make the difference between a garment that has that "loving hands of home look" and one that is purchased. Pressing is one of the most important details of any garment.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

Do you need a zig-zag machine stitch to do the lettuce-leaf edging that is seen on factory made garments? — Mrs. B. E. M.

Dear Mrs. B. E. M.,

Yes, you must have a machine that has a zig-zag stitch or attachment. Remember, the stitches must be close together and usually the bite or width of stitch is rather narrow. Also, remember that your fabric must either be a knit that stretches or must be cut on the bias.

Sew simple

by Eunice Farmer

Lettuce-leaf edging can be simple or difficult, depending on your sewing machine. If your machine literally grabs and devours the fabric into the needle hole on the plate, you must take an extra step. You can press the edge of the fabric by turning over about one-half inch in a single fold. Then do your edging on the double layer of fabric, stretching like mad as you stitch. The stretching is what produces the curly edge.

After you have completed the edges, go back and cut away the excess fabric, and you will have a beautifully finished edging. This edging is done on scarfs, hems, belts and ties. Just look at ready-to-wear for ideas. It's fun to do the same details used by professionals.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I have learned so much from your column. You have encouraged me to keep trying new things. In an earlier column you mentioned using buttonhole twist for gathering stitches. What is this type of thread and how do you use it? Sorry to ask such an elementary question, but perhaps I'm not the only "dummy." — Mrs. R. S. G.

Dear Mrs. R. S. G.,

Sorry, but I suppose once in awhile I take a little too much for granted. I was sure that even the smallest towns carried buttonhole twist.

For those of you who aren't aware of it, it is a heavier thread that is especially used for top stitching woolens or heavier fabrics. It's also used when zippers are applied by hand or when sewing on buttons on coats and jackets where a heavier thread is necessary for strength.

Because of the strength of it, I have recommended using it on your bobbin when stitching two rows of stitches that will be pulled up for a gathered effect. The most maddening thing I know of is to pull yards of fabric up for gathers and then, before you are finished, having the thread break. Because of buttonhole twist's extra strength, it will not break, thus saving a few unhappy moments.

Perhaps the next time you visit a place where a large variety of sewing notions are available, it would be wise to pick up a couple of spools of buttonhole twist for future use. Today, most of the buttonhole twist is polyester; formerly, it was always made of silk. The strength will not be affected by the different fibers.

Hormone governs calcium in blood

A member of my family in her late 70s has been told she has an overactive parathyroid gland. I have never heard of this condition before and can't find out much about it. What are the parathyroid glands? What is their function in the body? What causes them to become overactive? What symptoms do they cause and what is the treatment? Is this thing hereditary and does poor nutrition play any part in causing it?

The parathyroid glands are tiny glands located on each side of the thyroid in the neck. They are principally involved in calcium metabolism. Normally as the blood calcium level falls they release parathyroid hormone. This hormone mobilizes calcium from the bones to help raise the blood calcium back to the normal level.

An increase in activity of the parathyroid glands occurs in a number of conditions. One of these is vitamin D deficiency related to rickets. Diseases that interfere with the absorption from the digestive tract and even chronic kidney disease may cause overactivity of the parathyroid glands.

Overactivity of the parathyroid glands may cause an increase in the amount of calcium in the blood. This may lead to calcification of soft tissues such as calcium deposits in the kidneys and other areas. Mobilizing calcium out of the bones causes a form of bone degeneration.

What causes it? If it is limited to the parathyroid glands themselves, about 80 per cent of the causes are the result of small, benign tumors of these glands. In only about two per cent of the cases is a malignancy involved. Most of the other cases are just increased size and function of otherwise normal glands.

The symptoms and findings depend on how much overactivity exists. If it's a mild form, there may be no symptoms at all. The diagnosis may be made from a routine blood test for other purposes.

THE DISEASE can develop slowly and eventually the person may start complaining of kidney stones and other problems. In other cases the course is rapid, causing severe weight loss, bone pain and fractures. Many individuals live a normal lifespan with mild forms of overactive parathyroid glands.

Three complications of an overactive parathyroid are kidney stones, peptic ulcers and bone problems. An old clinical aphorism states overactivity of the parathyroid glands causes stones, bones and groans.

The treatment depends upon the cause. In mild forms, the elevated calcium levels are controlled with various medications. Any person with this problem should drink sufficient liquids to maintain a relatively constant flow of dilute urine to help prevent kidney stones. In some cases surgery may be necessary, if there is one or more small tumors of the gland.

The disease is not inherited. Nutrition plays no role in causing it. A low calcium diet won't help since more calcium will be mobilized out of the bones.

For information on planning a healthy diet for all send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 4-6, Balanced Diet, Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA). Rice can't be tinted? Mom, daughter did it

Dear Dorothy: My daughter Jody and I read that you didn't know of any way to tint raw rice. We couldn't accept that. We used red and blue food coloring, just pouring some in a cup of cold water and then adding the rice. Drained the rice on paper towels. The rice was a little soft so we baked it for a few minutes.—Mrs. Mike Fine.

I'm almost speechless. And so will be some of my "experts" when they see that Mrs. Fine sent — some of the loveliest blue and pink rice one could imagine. This all began over someone who wanted to tint raw rice to throw at a wedding and I said it couldn't be done. On one part, I still contend there are better things to do with rice than throw it at weddings.

Dear Dorothy: Candle wax on furniture — how do you get it off?—Mrs. H. B. Hart Jr.

From time to time, readers have reported their methods. One recommended using a blotter with an almost cool iron to absorb the wax. Another scraped off as much of the wax as possible with a blunt knife, then used a paste of cleaning fluid and fuller's earth to spread thickly on the stain — and when dry, brushed off. Experts say that after the wax has been carefully removed, one should use warm water and rub, rub, rub. Should there be a slight fading, rub with a cotton ball dipped in household alcohol and then squeezed almost dry. Then proceed with regular furniture waxing.

Dear Dorothy: People on low sodium diets might like to season green beans the way we do. Add one teaspoon lemon juice and one-quarter teaspoon of dry mustard to four tablespoons of melted margarine.—Hester Wise

ESA council installs new officers May 2

Three area women named to top posts in Woodfield Area Council of Epsilon Sigma Alpha were installed May 2 at the council's Founder's Day banquet held at the Maitre 'd in Elk Grove Village.

Georgia Miller of Arlington Heights was installed as president; Shirley Harker, Arlington Heights, vice president; and Donna Bayma, Mount Prospect, corresponding secretary. All are from Gamma Gamma Chapter, Palatine.

The council consists of seven chapters in the northern district of Illinois, and locally, besides Gamma Gamma includes Beta Nu and Gamma Theta of Hoffman Estates. Members reside in all suburban communities surrounding the charter towns.

NAMED COMMITTEE chairmen were Bonnie Shirk, Schaumburg; Diane Pearce and Dorothy Latko, Hoffman Estates; and Gloria McCullough, Palatine.

Founded May 1, 1929, in Jacksonville, Tex., ESA is international. Current philanthropic project is the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn., and its affiliate, the Methodist Hospital in Peoria. To date ESA has donated more than $1 million to St. Jude's. Educational programs are aimed at fostering community awareness, personal development and leadership.

Arlington Juniors

Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club meets Tuesday evening at Pioneer Park Fieldhouse. Mrs Judy Lahey, a community service coordinator for Shelter, Inc., of Hoffman Estates, will describe the emergency foster home program the organization provides for abused, neglected and dependent children.

Also at the Juniors' meeting, Janet Willmarth, a senior at Prospect High School, will receive a drama scholarship award from the club and will present a short dramatic monologue. Information 255-4364.

Pioneer Women

Tips on wallpapering will be the topic for Aviva Pioneer Women Tuesday. Joyce McPherson of Midwest Wallcoverings and Chuck Miller of Buffalo Grove Home Center will be speakers and cover hanging paper, unusual places to use the paper and dos and don'ts. Death expert gets Alexian award

Noted expert on death and dying, Dr. Elisabeth Kubler-Ross received the Alexian Brothers Samaritan Award during a benefit dinner dance Saturday night at Itasca Country Club.

Kubler-Ross, a Swiss-born psychiatrist, is the author of "On Death and Dying" and "Death: The Final Stage of Growth." In her books, the thanatologist urges dying patients, their families and the medical profession to react more honestly to death.

"Much of her life has been dedicated to explaining with dignity the matter of death and dying," said Brother Florian Eberle, president of Alexian Brothers of America, Inc. in making the presentation.

Alexian Brothers of America Inc. is the governing organization of Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

"IT IS ESPECIALLY significant that the initial work of the Alexian Brothers was in burying the victims of the plague and that the present apostolate in which the brothers are engaged is the healing ministry," Brother Florian said.

The bronze medallion, depicting a samaritan aiding a wounded man at the side of the road, is presented each year to an individual who, in the Alexian Brothers' judgment, has demonstrated concern for the ill, charity for the neglected and courage for those who need support.

In 1974, the award was presented to actress Patricia Neal, a recovered stroke victim; and to Dr. David Boyd, the innovator of the Illinois hospital trauma system. The 1975 recipient was Howard E. Crouch, founder and president of the Damien-Dutton Society for Leprosy Aid.

Kubler-Ross developed the concept of "five stages of death," which she uses to describe a dying person's reaction to death. She is a lecturer and conducts seminars on the psychological aspects of death.

Death expert gets Alexian award

Noted expert on death and dying, Dr. Elisabeth Kubler-Ross received the Alexian Brothers Samaritan Award during a benefit dinner dance Saturday night at Itasca Country Club.

Kubler-Ross, a Swiss-born psychiatrist, is the author of "On Death and Dying" and "Death: The Final Stage of Growth." In her books, the thanatologist urges dying patients, their families and the medical profession to react more honestly to death.

"Much of her life has been dedicated to explaining with dignity the matter of death and dying," said Brother Florian Eberle, president of Alexian Brothers of America, Inc. in making the presentation.

Alexian Brothers of America Inc. is the governing organization of Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

"IT IS ESPECIALLY significant that the initial work of the Alexian Brothers was in burying the victims of the plague and that the present apostolate in which the brothers are engaged is the healing ministry," Brother Florian said.

The bronze medallion, depicting a samaritan aiding a wounded man at the side of the road, is presented each year to an individual who, in the Alexian Brothers' judgment, has demonstrated concern for the ill, charity for the neglected and courage for those who need support.

In 1974, the award was presented to actress Patricia Neal, a recovered stroke victim; and to Dr. David Boyd, the innovator of the Illinois hospital trauma system. The 1975 recipient was Howard E. Crouch, founder and president of the Damien-Dutton Society for Leprosy Aid.

Kubler-Ross developed the concept of "five stages of death," which she uses to describe a dying person's reaction to death. She is a lecturer and conducts seminars on the psychological aspects of death.

Applications for summer work available

Application blanks now are available for a summer federal work program for suburban youths through the Cook County Office of Manpower Services.

Eligible young people will be placed in nonprofit organizations, such as schools, libraries and park districts, June 14-Aug. 31 for an hourly wage of $2.30. High School Dist. 214 is among the organizations participating in the program.

To be eligible for a job through the program, the youth must be 14 to 22 years of age, in school, and from a suburban family whose income does not exceed levels stated by the federal government. For example, the annual income of a family of four must not exceed $5,500 and a family of six must not exceed $7,300, adding $900 for each additional family member.

Information is available through George Theodore, director of the Youth Opportunities Unlimited program, 537-6500, ext. 36.
